

Contents

- 1 Introduction — 1
 - 1.1 Cartographic Cinema, Embodiment, and the Navigating Spectator — 5
 - 1.2 The War Film as a Corpographic Genre — 12
 - 1.3 Pathos, Affect, and Expressive Movement — 18

- 2 Measuring the Trenches: Corpographies of the First World War — 25
 - 2.1 The Great War in Literature and Film — 26
 - 2.2 Geographies of Fear: ALL QUIET ON THE WESTERN FRONT — 30
 - 2.3 Images of the Paths: Stanley Kubrick's PATHS OF GLORY — 45

- 3 From Above and From Within: Aerial Views and Corpographic Transformations in the WWII Combat Film — 57
 - 3.1 Documenting War: The United States, Britain, and the Burma Campaign — 59
 - 3.2 OBJECTIVE, BURMA! / Subjective Burma: The Illusion of Overview — 63
 - 3.3 Corpography and Conversion: FURY's Hell on Wheels — 80

- 4 Dismembering War: Touch and Fragmentation in Anthony Mann's MEN IN WAR — 97
 - 4.1 The Forgotten Subgenre: The Korean War Film of the 1950s — 100
 - 4.2 Forgetting to Remember: In and Out of Touch in MEN IN WAR — 106
 - 4.3 Vectors, Bodies, and Blind Spots — 117

- 5 Uncharting Territories: The Vietnam War's Shattering of the Senses — 126
 - 5.1 Shattered Senses — 128
 - 5.2 THE BOYS IN COMPANY C: Sonic Envelopes and Aural Traces — 133
 - 5.3 Off-screen Monstrosity — 138
 - 5.4 RESCUE DAWN: Into the Abyss — 142

- 6 ZERO DARK THIRTY: Corpographies of the War on Terror — 151
 - 6.1 Echoes of Terror: Black Screens and Black Sites of 9/11 — 153
 - 6.2 Behind the Surface — 158

VIII — Contents

6.3 Tracking Shots — 163

6.4 Night Visions / Night Calls: The Canaries — 168

7 Conclusion — 173

Bibliography — 182

Filmography — 193

Subject index — 195

Name index — 198

Film index — 201