

Contents

Genome Editing in Agriculture: Between Precaution and Responsibility. An Introduction 9
Stephan Schleissing, Sebastian Pfeilmeier, & Christian Dürnberger

PART I: GENOME EDITING, REGULATION, AND PLANT BREEDING – SCIENTIFIC ASPECTS 23

The Logic of Exempting CRISPR/Cas9-Plants from Strict GM Approval under European Union GM Regulation: A Case Study of Genome Editing in Camelina 25
Jarst van Belle, Jan Schaart, & Robert van Loo

Accelerated Breeding of Carrots (Daucus carota) through the New Plant Breeding Method of Uniparental Genome Elimination by Haploid Technology: A Blur between Breeding and Regulation 47
Katharina Unkel & Thorben Sprink

Gene-Edited ‘Gluten-Safe’ Wheat, and Policy Issues Regarding New Plant Breeding Techniques 61
Aurélie Jouanin & Marinus J.M. Smulders

PART II: LEGAL CONSIDERATIONS ON THE REGULATION OF GENOME EDITING IN LIGHT OF THE PRECAUTIONARY PRINCIPLE 75

Options for the Regulation of Genome Edited Plants – Framing the Issues 77
Hans-Georg Dederer

Genome Editing: Why go beyond Precaution? The (Non-) Place for ‘Irrational’ Public Opinions in EU Risk Regulation Brigitte Voigt	123
The International Regime on Liability for Damage Arising from the Use of Genome Editing and Gene Drives in Agriculture: Current Shortcomings and Pathways for Future Improvement Felix Beck	135
The Precautionary Principle, the Labelling of Gene-edited Products, and the WTO Case Law João Otávio Benevides Demasi	153
 PART III: GENOME EDITING AND THE PRECAUTIONARY PRINCIPLE – THEORY AND DEMOCRATIC PRACTICE	179
CRISPR/Cas, Precaution and Democracy: The Challenging Governance of a Rapidly Changing Technology Bartosz Bartkowski	181
When Technology and Reality Meet: Exploring the Potential of a Constructive Precautionary Principle for Genome-Editing Technologies Chad M. Baum	197
Precautionary Deliberation: New Technologies and the Regulatory Call for Responsible Innovation Alexander Bogner &amp; Helge Torgersen	213
Regulating Biotechnology in the Age of Digitalization: The Open Access Paradigm Sebastian Schubert	235
The Precautionary Principle: Origin, Ethical Implications, and Theological Outlook Anne Friederike Hoffmann	251

Analysing NGOs and their Discourses against GM Crops: Germany and the UK	259
Ksenia Gerasimova
Eating Information Together: Animals, Genetics, and how to avoid Mutual Misunderstanding between Scientists and the Public	275
Karolina Rucinska
List of Authors	289