

Contents

Editorial	1
-----------------	---

MacIntyre's Aristotelianism

Carey Seal
MacIntyre and the Polis	5
Cary J. Nederman
Men at Work: Poesis , Politics and Labor in Aristotle and Some Aristotelians	17
Kelvin Knight
After Tradition?: Heidegger or MacIntyre, Aristotle and Marx	33

MacIntyre's Thomism

Alex Bavister-Gould
The Uniqueness of After Virtue (or 'Against Hindsight')	55
Thomas Osborne
MacIntyre, Thomism and the Contemporary Common Good	75
Christopher Stephen Lutz
From Voluntarist Nominalism to Rationalism to Chaos: Alasdair MacIntyre's Critique of Modern Ethics	91

Metaethics

Marian Kuna
MacIntyre's Search for a Defensible Aristotelian Ethics and the Role of Metaphysics	103
Piotr Machura
MacIntyre's Radical Intellectualism: The Philosopher as a Moral Ideal	121
Benedict Smith
Traditional Moral Knowledge and Experience of the World	139
Seiriol Morgan
Moral Philosophy, Moral Identity and Moral Cacophony: On MacIntyre on the Modern Self	157

The Critique of Liberalism and Capitalism

Timothy Chappell

Utopias and the Art of the Possible 179

Bill Bowring

Misunderstanding MacIntyre on Human Rights 205

Paul Blackledge

Alasdair MacIntyre's Contribution to Marxism: A Road Not Taken 215

Ron Beadle

Why Business Cannot be a Practice 229

Russell Keat

Ethics, Markets, and MacIntyre 243

Reply

Alasdair MacIntyre

What More Needs to Be Said? A Beginning, Although Only a Beginning, at Saying It 261

Authors 282