Contents

Preface
Abbreviations 7

1. Introduction 9
1.1. Aims and methods 9
1.2. Previous research 11
1.3. Syntactic framework 12
1.4. Outline 15

2. Order and configuration 17
2.1. Preliminaries 17
2.2. On grammatical configurationality 19
2.2.1. The configurationality properties 19
2.2.2. Subject-object symmetries and asymmetries 22
2.2.3. Other constituency problems 27
2.2.4. Constituent Liberation? 30
2.2.5. The need for a discourse configuration 35
2.3. The Finnish discourse configuration 37
2.3.1. The general picture 37
2.3.2. The pivotal status of T 40
2.3.2.1. Types of T and markedness 40
2.3.2.2. Clause types 44
2.3.3. Locating K and T 51
2.3.3.1. Some rules 51
2.3.3.2. Special cases 56
2.4. Variability in the V-field 63
2.4.1. Marked order 63
2.4.2. Unmarked order 65
2.5. Summary 71

3. Discourse interpretation of word order 72
3.1. Old and new information 72
3.2. T and aboutness 79
3.3. K and thematic ambivalence 84
3.3.1. Questions from questions 85
3.3.2. K: TOP sentences 91
3.3.2.1. Nominal Ks 91
3.3.2.2. Verbs and discontinuous information constituents . 98
3.3.3. K: FOCTOP sentences 102
3.3.3.1. From confirmation to correction 102
3.3.3.2. Notes on accentuation 107
3.3.3.3. Insufficient answers 110
3.3.4. Finite K 113

3.3.5. The role of XV order 121
3.3.5.1. X is old 121
3.3.5.2. Observations on subordinate clauses and questions . 126
3.3.6. Conclusions 131
3.4. A closer look at T 134
3.5. An excursion on dummies and dislocations 139
3.5.1. Dummies in dislocation 140
3.5.2. Dummies as place markers 143
3.6. Summary 147

4. Subject's place 149
4.1. On subjecthood 149
4.2. Existence and possession 155
4.2.1. Subject - object neutralization 155
4.2.2. Semantic bonding 161
4.2.3. Manifestation sentences 165
4.2.4. Habitives 169
4.3. A note on idioms 175
4.4. Focusing and not focusing 178
4.5. On inversion 187
4.6. Old late subject? 192
4.7. A restriction on subject postponing 194
4.8. Summary 195

5. Medium-distance dependencies 197
5.1. Overview 198
5.2. Sketching the description 202
5.2.1. Functional uncertainty 202
5.2.2. Special cases 206
5.3. Verb chains 207
5.3.1. The verb chain and its members 207
5.3.2. Order inside the verb chain 210
5.3.3. Marked order inside the verb chain 214
5.4. Conditions for splitting 217
5.4.1. Category, function and sentence-likeness 217
5.4.2. Oblique VCOMP 223
5.4.3. The domain of splitting 228
5.5. Positions for nominal constituents 230
5.5.1. On T choice in verb chain sentences 230
5 5.2. Crossing and nesting 234
5.5.3. Mixing preposed verbs with nominals 240
5.6. Alternatives and summary 247

Notes 251

References 268

Index of rules and generalizations 280