

CONTENTS

Series Editor's Foreword ix

Acknowledgments xiii

*Introduction: Captivity Is Consciousness:
Captivity, Culture-Crossing, and the Revision of Identity* 1

ONE *A More Interesting Adventure: Critics,
Captives, and Narrative Dissent* 16

TWO *Her Tortures Were Turned into Frolick:
Captivity and Liminal Critique, 1682–
1862* 41

THREE *That Was Not My Idea of Independence:
The Captivity of Patty Hearst* 87

FOUR *The Wilderness of Fiction: From Captivity
Narrative to Captivity Romance* 106

FIVE *Captives in History: Susanna Rowson's
Reuben and Rachel* 137

SIX *A Hostage in the House: Domestic
Captivity and Catharine Sedgwick's Hope
Leslie* 159

Conclusion: Contemporary Captives 180

Notes 195

References 219

Index 231