

Contents

Foreword	9
Introduction: The scope of this book	13
1 The Tradition of Apocalyptic Prophecy
Jewish and early Christian apocalyptic	19
The apocalyptic tradition in medieval Europe	29
2 The Tradition of Religious Dissent
The ideal of the apostolic life	37
Some early messiahs	41
3 The Messianism of the Disoriented Poor
The impact of rapid social change	53
The poor in the first crusades	61
4 The Saints Against the Hosts of Antichrist
Saviours in the Last Days	71
The demonic hosts	74
Phantasy, anxiety and social myth	84
5 In the Backwash of the Crusades
The Pseudo-Baldwin and the 'Master of Hungary'	89
The last crusades of the poor	98
6 The Emperor Frederick as Messiah
Joachite prophecy and Frederick II	108
The resurrection of Frederick	113
Manifestos for a future Frederick	118
7 An Elite of Self-immolating Redeemers
The genesis of the flagellant movement	127
Revolutionary flagellants	136
The secret flagellants of Thuringia	142

8	An Elite of Amoral Supermen (i)
	The heresy of the Free Spirit	148
	The Amaurians	152
	The sociology of the Free Spirit	156
9	An Elite of Amoral Supermen (ii)
	The spread of the movement	163
	The way to self-deification	172
	The doctrine of mystical anarchism	176
10	The Egalitarian State of Nature
	In the thought of Antiquity	187
	In patristic and medieval thought	191
11	The Egalitarian Millennium (i)
	Marginalia to the English Peasants' Revolt	198
	The Taborite Apocalypse	205
	Anarcho-communism in Bohemia	214
12	The Egalitarian Millennium (ii)
	The Drummer of Niklashausen	223
	Thomas Müntzer	234
13	The Egalitarian Millennium (iii)
	Anabaptism and social unrest	252
	Münster as the New Jerusalem	261
	The messianic reign of John of Leyden	271
	Conclusion	281
	Appendix. The 'Free Spirit' in Cromwell's England: the Ranters and their literature	287
	Notes	333
	Bibliography	372
	Index	401