

CONTENTS

I	Period I: London—Birth of a New Order (1558–1659)	1
	INTRODUCTION	1
1.1	John Lyly: London the Ideal City	6
1.2	Donald Lupton: London Bridge	7
1.3	Robert Herrick Laments Leaving His Native London	8
1.4	Herrick's Joyful Return to London	9
1.5	John Webster: The Decrepitude of Some London Buildings	10
1.6	John Donne: The Lively Streets of London	11
1.7	William Habington: In Praise of London in the Long Vacation	15
	DRAMA AND THE THEATRE	16
1.8	Philip Stubbes: Puritan Objections to Stage Plays	16
1.9	Shakespeare: "On Your Imaginary Forces Work"	17
1.10	Shakespeare: The Best Actors Are but Shadows	18
	THE PLAGUE	20
1.11	Thomas Nashe: "Adieu, Farewell, Earth's Bliss"	20
1.12	Thomas Dekker: The Plague and Its Victims in 1603	21
	THE COURT AND COURTIER	22
1.13	Sir John Davies: "Our Glorious English Court's Divine Image"	22
1.14	Edmund Spenser: Another View of Love at Court	24
1.15	Anon.: A Courtier	25
1.16	Thomas Dekker: "How a Young Gallant Should Behave Himself in an Ordinary"	26
	WHO SHOULD 'SCAPE WHIPPING?	27
1.17	John Earle: A Shopkeeper	27
1.18	Thomas Middleton: A Goldsmith Gulled	28
1.19	Barnabe Rich: Vanity Fair	29
1.20	Thomas Harman: An Abraham Man	30
1.21	Robert Greene: Beware of Pickpockets	30
1.22	Middleton: Roaring Girls	32

1.23	Ben Jonson: Pickpockets at Bartholomew Fair	33
1.24	John Earle: A Prison	34
1.25	Donald Lupton: Bedlam	35
1.26	Dekker and Middleton: Entertainment Provided by the Inmates of Bedlam	37
	THE COMING OF THE COMMONWEALTH	37
1.27	Andrew Marvell: The Execution of Charles I	37
1.28	John Evelyn: "The Funeral Sermon of Preaching"	38
1.29	Evelyn: Persecution of Royalist Churchgoers	39
	References	40
2	Period 2: London in the Enlightenment (1660–1780)	41
	INTRODUCTION	41
2.1	Celia Fiennes: Some Topographical Features of London	48
2.2	Daniel Defoe: London Surging in Size	50
	THE RESTORATION	52
2.3	John Evelyn: Charles II's Triumphal Entry into London	52
2.4	Evelyn: Bodies of Cromwell and Others Exhumed	53
2.5	Evelyn: Gambling and Debauchery at the Court of Charles II	53
2.6	Evelyn: James II's Ill-Timed Feast for the Venetian Ambassadors	54
	THE GREAT PLAGUE	55
2.7	Samuel Pepys Describes the Plague	55
2.8	Daniel Defoe's Imaginative Reconstruction of the Great Plague	56
	THE GREAT FIRE	58
2.9	John Dryden: London on Fire	58
2.10	Pepys' Buried Treasures	62
2.11	Defoe: London Before and After the Fire	62
	INSTITUTIONS	64
2.12	John Evelyn: Some Unusual Proceedings of the Royal Society	64
2.13	Ned Ward: The Rebuilding of St Paul's Cathedral	65
2.14	Joseph Addison: The Royal Exchange	66
2.15	Ned Ward: Crowds at the Entrance to the Royal Exchange	67
2.16	Defoe: Westminster Abbey	68
	ALL THAT LIFE CAN AFFORD	70
2.17	Samuel Johnson in Praise of London	70
2.18	John Gay: The Labyrinthine Streets of London	70
2.19	Gay on Pall Mall	71
2.20	Jonathan Swift: "A Description of a City Shower"	72
2.21	Tobias Smollett: Ranelagh and Vauxhall Gardens	74
2.22	Hannah More: The Bluestocking Circle	76
2.23	Ned Ward: Pork Sellers at Bartholomew Fair	77
2.24	Benjamin Franklin: "Work, the Curse of the Drinking Classes"	78

A WALK ON THE WILD SIDE	80
2.25 John Gay: Perils of London by Night	80
2.26 James Smith: Sex-Workers in the Strand	81
2.27 Daniel Defoe on Shoplifting	82
2.28 Defoe: Newgate Prison	83
2.29 Samuel Richardson: An Execution at Tyburn	84
2.30 Samuel Johnson: The Crime of Poverty	86
2.31 Thomas Holcoft: The Gordon Riots	87
References	90
3 Period 3: London—New Riches, New Squalor (1781–1870)	91
INTRODUCTION	91
AN OPENING MISCELLANY	98
3.1 Charlotte Bronte: London as Life and Freedom	98
3.2 Mary Robinson: “London’s Summer Morning”	99
3.3 Charles Dickens: A London ‘Pea-Souper’	101
3.4 William Cobbett: The Great Wen	103
3.5 William Wordsworth: Alienation and Anonymity	104
3.6 Alfred, Lord Tennyson: The Noise of Life Begins Again	105
3.7 William Blake: “Marks of Woe”	106
3.8 Charles Dickens: A Sunday in London	107
3.9 William Makepeace Thackeray: “Going to See a Man Hanged.”	108
DELIGHTS AND BEAUTIES	110
3.10 Thomas Hood: Let’s All Go Down the Strand	110
3.11 John Ruskin Recalls a Childhood Paradise at Herne Hill	111
3.12 William Wordsworth: “Composed Upon Westminster Bridge, September 3, 1802”	113
3.13 Matthew Arnold, “Lines Written in Kensington Gardens”	113
3.14 George Borrow on Cheapside	115
3.15 Frederick Locker-Lampson, “St. James’s Street,” 1867	118
3.16 Charles Dickens: Going Up the River	120
3.17 Nathaniel Hawthorne: A London Suburb	121
INSTITUTIONS	123
3.18 William Blake: St Paul’s Cathedral on Holy Thursday	123
3.19 Thomas De Quincey: Tourists Must Pay to See the Sights of St Paul’s Cathedral	124
3.20 Charles Dickens: The Building of a Railway	125
3.21 Henry Mayhew and George Cruikshank: The Great Exhibition and the Crystal Palace	126
3.22 John Ruskin: The Crystal Palace	128
3.23 Thomas de Quincey: The Theatre Royal, Drury Lane, Destroyed	129
3.24 Benjamin Disraeli: A View of Politicians	130

MIDDLE CLASS LIFE	131
3.25 Anthony Trollope: Publicans and Sinners	131
3.26 Alfred, Lord Tennyson: "Ode Sung at the Opening of the International Exhibition" (1862)	133
3.27 Charles Dickens: A London Hackney-Coach	134
3.28 Charles Lamb: "The Old Benchers of the Inner Temple"	138
3.29 Wilkie Collins: A Child's Sunday in London	141
3.30 Elizabeth Gaskell: Haste to the Wedding	145
3.31 Charles Dickens: Dinner in Harley Street	149
3.32 Charles Dickens: Bran-New People	151
3.33 William Thackeray: Wars and Rumours of Wars	151
3.34 Robert Smith Surtees, Sponge in the City	152
3.35 Herman Melville: The Temple	154
3.36 William Makepeace Thackeray: "Great City Snobs"	155
3.37 Elizabeth Barrett Browning: A Writing Woman	157
WORKING-CLASS LIFE	159
3.38 Leigh Hunt: A London Waiter	159
3.39 Henry Mayhew: Covent Garden Market	162
3.40 Charles Dickens: Bleeding Heart Yard	163
3.41 Charles Kingsley: The Making of a Chartist	164
3.42 William Morris: "Prologue: The Wanderers"	166
3.43 Henry Mayhew: "The Narrative of a Gay Woman"	167
3.44 Thomas De Quincey: "Preliminary Confessions"	172
3.45 Dante Gabriel Rossetti: "Jenny"	173
3.46 Christina Rossetti, "In an Artist's Studio"	174
3.47 Thomas Hardy: "The Ruined Maid"	175
References	176
4 Period 4: London—Capital of Empire, 1871–1914	177
INTRODUCTION	177
AN OPENING MISCELLANY	184
4.1 Thomas Hardy, "Snow in the Suburbs"	184
4.2 Henry James, a Saturday Evening Stroll	184
4.3 Lionel Johnson: "By the Statue of King Charles at Charing Cross"	185
4.4 George Moore: A Train Journey	187
DELIGHTS AND BEAUTIES	188
4.5 Emily Constance Cook: The Respectable Grime of Ages	188
4.6 Henry James: The Appeal of the Great City	189
4.7 Oscar Wilde, "Impression du Matin"	190
4.8 H. G. Wells: An Evening in Hyde Park	191
4.9 Robert Bridges, "London Snow"	192
THE AESTHETIC MOVEMENT	193
4.10 Oscar Wilde: "London Models"	193
4.11 Vernon Lee: The Mazes of Aesthetic London	196

4.12	George Moore: Bohemian Life in Mayfair	198
4.13	George Gissing: A Struggling Writer	199
	INSTITUTIONS	202
4.14	William S. Gilbert: The House of Peers	202
4.15	Anthony Trollope: The House of Commons	203
4.16	George Gissing: The Crystal Palace Park	205
4.17	Arnold Bennett: A London Bank	206
4.18	C. W. Murphy: "I Live in Trafalgar Square"	207
	THE THAMES	208
4.19	Henry James: A Steamer Down the Thames	208
4.20	Joseph Conrad: Sunset on the Thames	209
	MIDDLE CLASS LIFE	211
4.21	George Eliot: A House by the Thames	211
4.22	Margaret Oliphant: The Painter and the Philistine	212
4.23	George Gissing: The Women's Movement	215
4.24	Mary Augusta Ward: A Politician and His Wife	216
4.25	Lady St Helier: Politics and the Music-Hall	218
4.26	George and Weedon Grossmith: Nobody Is Invited to a Ball	219
	WORKING-CLASS LIFE	221
4.27	George Gissing: Supreme Ugliness in the Caledonian Road	221
4.28	Joseph Conrad: Bombs and Pornography	222
4.29	Israel Zangwill: A Child of the Ghetto	224
4.30	D. H. Lawrence: Outcasts of Waterloo Bridge	225
4.31	Amy Levy: "Ballade of an Omnibus"	226
4.32	Arthur Morrison: A Slum	228
4.33	Baroness Emmuska Orczy: Death on the Tube	229
4.34	Virginia Woolf: Leaving London	234
	AFTER LONDON	237
4.35	Richard Jefferies: Drowned London	237
	EPILOGUE: TOWN VERSUS COUNTRY	239
4.36	Beatrix Potter: Town Mouse and Country Mouse	239
	References	242
	Further Reading	243
	Part 1: Historical Contexts	243
	Part 2: Literary Contexts	245
	Index	249