

Contents

Preface	vii
Definitions	ix
1 Identifying the Problems	1
PART I ABANDONING THE 'SACRED COWS' OF MARXIAN ORTHODOXY
2 Against the 'Holy Trinity' of 'The State', 'Civil Society' and 'The Economy'	25
3 From 'Civil Society' to 'World Capitalism': The Reduction of State Institutions to Non-Economic 'Superstructures'	34
4 Electoral Struggles: The Limits of 'Political Business Cycle' and 'Class-Theoretical' Analyses	56
PART II TOWARDS A NEW WAY OF ANALYSING STATE INSTITUTIONS
5 Introducing the Concepts of Electoral, Production, Credit and Food Production Processes	69
6 Overcoming the Dichotomy of 'The State' and 'Civil Society': The Importance of Electoral Processes	82
7 Production Processes: Beyond the Separation of 'The State' from 'The Economy'	107
8 From Abundance to Scarcity: Contradictions within Credit Processes	129
9 The Industrialisation of Food Production Processes: A Neglected Revolution	152
10 One 'World-System' or 'Organised Anarchy': The Crises of Desynchronisation	171

PART III RECOGNISING THE NATURE OF STATE INSTITUTIONS: IMPLICATIONS FOR THE FUTURE

11	Between Reform and Revolution: 'Alternative Programmes' and their Failure to Confront the Desynchronisation of Processes	191
12	A Socialist Stocktaking: Against Stateless Socialism and Market Socialism	223
13	The Impossibility of Socialist Pluralism without State Institutions	251
	Conclusion	279
	Notes and References	287
	Index	317