

CONTENTS

1	Why the Manifesto?	1
	Manifest History, Manifesto History	4
	Style as Substance	7
	The Time Is More Than Now	11
	Mobilizing an “Us”	15
	What Next?	19
	Further Reading Suggestions	21
2	The Naksa’s New Cinema: New Cinema Group, “Manifesto of New Cinema in Egypt” (1968)	23
	Film and Social Change in Egypt	25
	Manifesto of New Cinema in Egypt	27
	Learning from and During the Naksa	33
	Film Culture: Global and Local	41
	Further Reading Suggestions	46
	Further Viewing Suggestions	47
3	Cinematic Third Worldism: “Resolutions of the Third World Filmmakers Meeting” (Algeria 1973)	49
	The Spirit of Bandung	52
	Resolutions of the Third World Filmmakers Meeting (Algeria 1973)	57
	Algeria, from Colonization to Non-Alignment	68
	Algeria’s Revolutionary Film Culture	71

	After the Third World Filmmakers Meeting	78
	Further Reading Suggestions	79
	Further Viewing Suggestions	80
4	Cinema Within Armed Struggle: “Manifesto of the Palestinian Cinema Group” (1972) and Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine, “The Cinema and the Revolution”	81
	Guerrilla Warfare, Guerrilla Cinema	85
	The Film Units Unify	89
	Manifesto of the Palestinian Cinema Group (1972)	92
	The Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine	94
	The Cinema and the Revolution	95
	The Two Manifestos Side by Side and in Context	97
	Further Reading Suggestions	105
	Further Viewing Suggestions	106
5	“The Images are the Revolution’s”: Mosireen, “Revolution Triptych” (2013)	107
	Why Revolution?	110
	The Media Amidst Revolution	113
	Revolution Triptych	118
	Representation, Participation, Preservation	123
	Further Reading Suggestions	130
	Further Viewing Suggestions	131
	References	133
	Index	143