

Contents

List of Illustrations	ix
Acknowledgements	xiv
Abbreviations	xvi
Introduction	1
1 An Archaeology of Interaction and Mobility	4
A changing sea: Social differentiation and the Mediterranean through the lens of later globalization	4
What is interaction in archaeology?	8
A radical paradigm	13
Spatiality	26
Mediterranean Bronze Age Modes of Interaction	36
2 The Southern Adriatic: Social Geography, Previous Studies and Prelude to Late Bronze Age Interaction	39
The southern Adriatic: Sea, land and Means of Interaction	39
Approaches to Adriatic connectivity	50
The prelude to Late Bronze Age interaction	55
3 Early Encounters	68
The individual community during the Middle Bronze Age	68
The Protoapennine and Apennine network	84
The wider Mediterranean context during the Middle Bronze Age	93
The Middle Bronze Age Adriatic society and its connections: Modes of Production and Interaction	107
4 From Direct Contact to Brownian Motion: The Southern Adriatic during the Recent Bronze Age (1300–1100 BC)	119
The individual community during the Recent Bronze Age	119
The small-scale network during the Recent Bronze Age	129
The wider Mediterranean context during the Recent Bronze Age	134
The southern Adriatic during the Recent Bronze Age: Modes of Production and Interaction	156

5	Old Connections and New Equilibria at the End of the Southern Adriatic Bronze Age (1100–1000 BC)	161
	The individual community during the Final Bronze Age	161
	The small-scale network during the Final Bronze Age	171
	The wider Mediterranean context during the Final Bronze Age	177
	The Final Bronze Age in the southern Adriatic: Modes of Production and Interaction	189
6	The Southern Adriatic and the Social Logic of Interaction	198
	The southern Adriatic societies and the Mediterranean in the longue durée	198
	E pluribus unum, ex uno plures?	210
	The social logic of interaction: Then and now	211
	Notes	214
	References	220
	Index	276