

Table of contents

Foreword .....	VII
Acknowledgements .....	IX
1 Introduction .....	1
1.1 Information overload .....	1
1.2 The aim and procedure of the analysis .....	4
1.3 The organization of this thesis .....	4
2 Information .....	6
2.1 Basic aspects of information .....	6
2.1.1 Conceptions of information .....	6
2.1.1.1 Information theory: syntactic information .....	7
2.1.1.2 The semantics of information .....	8
2.1.1.3 Pragmatic information: information in decision problems and uncertainty .....	9
2.1.1.4 Concluding definition of information .....	11
2.1.2 Knowledge .....	12
2.1.3 The organization of knowledge and information .....	14
2.1.4 The value of information in economic situations .....	15
2.1.5 Properties of information .....	18
2.1.6 Information processing systems .....	19
2.2 Sources of information .....	22
2.2.1 Active acquisition of information .....	22
2.2.2 Passive acquisition of information .....	24
2.2.3 The costs of information production .....	25
2.3 The credibility of information and trust in the information source .....	26
2.3.1 Excursion: principal-agent theory .....	27
2.3.1.1 The principal-agent relationship .....	27
2.3.1.2 Agency costs .....	27
2.3.1.3 Types of information asymmetries .....	28
2.3.1.4 Cooperation design: efficient agency structures .....	28
2.3.2 The credibility of information .....	30
2.3.3 Achieving trust in the information source .....	31
2.4 Information and market efficiency .....	32
2.4.1 The price system .....	32
2.4.2 Effects of asymmetric information .....	34
2.5 Information as an economic commodity .....	36
2.5.1 Property rights and commodity-characteristics of information .....	37
2.5.2 Markets for information .....	39

2.5.3 Enterprises in markets for information .....	41
2.5.4 Strategies for pricing and selling information goods .....	43
2.5.5 The carrier of information .....	45
3 Intermediation .....	46
3.1 Basic concepts and functions of intermediaries.....	46
3.1.1 Intermediaries in trade .....	47
3.1.2 Intermediaries in financial markets.....	49
3.1.3 Concluding definition of intermediation.....	50
3.2 Justification of intermediaries .....	51
3.2.1 Comparative advantages from the exchange of goods and services .....	51
3.2.2 Excursion: the theory of transactions.....	53
3.2.2.1 Transactions.....	53
3.2.2.2 Transaction phases and transaction cost theory .....	54
3.2.2.3 The coordination function of transactions.....	56
3.2.3 Reduction of transaction costs through intermediation.....	58
3.2.3.1 Structural sources of intermediary efficiency .....	59
3.2.3.2 Functional sources of transaction cost reductions.....	62
3.2.3.3 Summary .....	65
3.2.4 Social welfare and distribution of resource savings.....	66
3.3 Intermediary contracts and sources of income .....	66
3.3.1 Contract theory and intermediation.....	66
3.3.2 Sources of income: merchant vs. broker intermediaries .....	67
3.4 Effects of intermediation on markets.....	70
3.4.1 Effects on asymmetric information.....	70
3.4.2 Coordination in presence of externalities.....	71
3.4.3 Clearing the market .....	71
3.4.4 Summary .....	72
3.5 Market microstructure .....	72
3.5.1 Competition .....	72
3.5.2 Industrial structure.....	74
4 An economic model of information intermediaries .....	76
4.1 Introduction.....	76
4.1.1 Abstract characterization of information intermediaries.....	76
4.1.2 Theoretic approach to the economics of information intermediaries .....	80
4.1.3 Questions concerning information intermediaries .....	82
4.2 The economic theory of search.....	83
4.2.1 The basic assumptions and structure of search models.....	84
4.2.2 The formal description of the simple search model .....	88
4.2.2.1 The reservation value in the optimal strategy .....	88
4.2.2.2 The searcher's utility .....	89

4.2.2.3	The searcher's net reward from an optimal strategy.....	90
4.2.3	Extensions to basic search models.....	91
4.2.3.1	Recall and the time horizon in the sequential decision process.....	91
4.2.3.2	Adaptive search models.....	92
4.2.3.3	Multistage search models.....	92
4.3	Model of an information intermediary.....	94
4.3.1	The intermediary's market environment.....	94
4.3.1.1	The suppliers' market side: sources of information.....	94
4.3.1.2	The consumers' market side.....	96
4.3.2	The information intermediary.....	98
4.3.2.1	Basic characterization.....	98
4.3.2.2	The intermediary's acquisition of information.....	101
4.3.2.3	The intermediary's clientele.....	103
4.3.2.4	Solutions to the intermediary model.....	105
4.3.2.5	The intermediary's expected revenue.....	107
4.3.3	The intermediary's optimization problem.....	109
4.3.4	Strategies of the information intermediary.....	111
4.3.5	Summary of the assumption of the basic model.....	114
4.4	The influence of environmental conditions on the intermediary's strategy.....	115
4.4.1	Search costs: $c$ .....	115
4.4.1.1	Fixed-quality-level strategy.....	116
4.4.1.2	Profit-maximizing strategy.....	117
4.4.1.3	Discussion.....	119
4.4.2	Distribution of qualities: $\lambda$ .....	120
4.4.2.1	Fixed-quality-level strategy.....	121
4.4.2.2	Profit-maximizing strategy.....	122
4.4.2.3	Discussion.....	124
4.4.3	The valuation of quality in the consumers' market.....	126
4.4.3.1	Mean of the distribution of consumers' willingness to pay: $\mu_s$ .....	127
4.4.3.1.1	Fixed-quality-level strategy.....	127
4.4.3.1.2	Profit-maximizing strategy.....	128
4.4.3.1.3	Summary.....	129
4.4.3.2	Standard deviation of the distribution of consumers' willingness to pay: $\sigma_s$ .....	129
4.4.3.2.1	Fixed-quality-level strategy.....	130
4.4.3.2.2	Profit-maximizing strategy.....	131
4.4.3.2.3	Summary.....	132
4.4.3.3	Discussion.....	132
4.4.4	Number of potential users in the market: $N$ .....	134
4.4.4.1	Fixed-quality-level strategy.....	134
4.4.4.2	Profit-maximizing strategy.....	135

- 4.4.4.3 Discussion ..... 135
- 4.5 Competition between information intermediaries ..... 138
  - 4.5.1 Formal treatment of competition in the intermediary model ..... 138
  - 4.5.2 Effects of competition ..... 141
    - 4.5.2.1 Price competition and competition in the quality level..... 141
    - 4.5.2.2 Competition in price-quality combinations..... 144
      - 4.5.2.2.1 Simultaneous game with discrete strategy space..... 144
      - 4.5.2.2.2 Sequential choice of strategies..... 145
    - 4.5.2.3 Discussion ..... 149
- 4.6 Welfare effects through the information intermediary ..... 150
  - 4.6.1 The social welfare function ..... 151
  - 4.6.2 Welfare effects ..... 152
  - 4.6.3 Discussion..... 154
- 4.7 Extensions to the basic intermediary model ..... 156
  - 4.7.1 Distributions assumed in the model..... 157
  - 4.7.2 Risk assessment of the market participants..... 157
  - 4.7.3 Information asymmetries between information intermediary and information seekers..... 158
  - 4.7.4 Different search technologies of information intermediary and information seekers..... 159
  - 4.7.5 Extensions of the underlying search model..... 159
  - 4.7.6 Modeling the information processing activities of the information intermediary ..... 160
- 4.8 Summary ..... 160
  - 4.8.1 General results of the basic model..... 160
  - 4.8.2 Critical success factors for information intermediaries..... 162
- 5 Concepts and design of information intermediaries ..... 163
  - 5.1 Information intermediaries ..... 164
    - 5.1.1 Analysis of the information need and the need for intermediaries in markets for information ..... 165
    - 5.1.2 General characterization of information intermediaries in markets for information ..... 167
    - 5.1.3 Information processing functions of information intermediaries ..... 169
      - 5.1.3.1 Receiving information ..... 170
      - 5.1.3.2 Storing information..... 170
      - 5.1.3.3 Manipulating information..... 171
      - 5.1.3.4 Altering the internal structure of the system..... 172
      - 5.1.3.5 Sending out information ..... 173
    - 5.1.4 Example: Information brokers ..... 173
      - 5.1.4.1 Basic characteristics ..... 173
      - 5.1.4.2 Activities of information brokers..... 174

5.1.4.3 Critical success factors and the acceptance of information brokers .....	177
5.1.5 Further examples of information intermediaries.....	178
5.2 Network-based intermediaries.....	179
5.2.1 Basic characteristics .....	179
5.2.2 Support of transaction phases in electronic commerce .....	181
5.2.2.1 The information phase.....	181
5.2.2.2 The negotiation phase.....	183
5.2.2.3 The execution phase .....	183
5.2.2.4 Summary and discussion .....	184
5.2.3 Example domains of network-based intermediaries .....	186
5.3 Network-based information intermediaries .....	188
5.3.1 Basic characteristics .....	188
5.3.2 Environmental circumstances .....	190
5.3.2.1 Acquisition of information .....	190
5.3.2.2 Usage of the service.....	192
5.3.3 Matching of information needs and available information .....	193
5.3.3.1 Information retrieval.....	193
5.3.3.2 Information filtering .....	195
5.3.4 Abstract architecture of network based information intermediaries .....	196
5.3.5 Examples of network-based information intermediaries.....	199
5.4 Summary: economic aspects of network-based information intermediaries.....	202
5.4.1 Business models for network-based information intermediaries .....	202
5.4.2 Differentiation of prices and quality .....	205
5.4.3 Competitive advantages of information intermediaries .....	206
6 Conclusion .....	208
6.1 Summary .....	208
6.2 Outlook: the future of network-based intermediaries? .....	210
7 References .....	212
8 Appendix .....	245
8.1 Appendix A: development of the number of Internet hosts.....	245
8.2 Appendix B: simplification of (eq. 9) using integration by parts.....	246
8.3 Appendix C: transformation of (eq. 12) into (eq. 13).....	246
8.4 Appendix D: proof of the indifference property.....	247
8.5 Appendix E: number of solutions of the system of equations in the broker model .....	248
8.6 Appendix F: partial derivatives of intermediary's profit .....	250
8.7 Appendix G: list of examples and URLs.....	252

List of figures ..... 255

List of tables ..... 259

List of used symbols ..... 260

List of abbreviations..... 265