

REGIONAL ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT

Essays in honour of
François Perroux

EDITED BY

Benjamin Higgins and Donald J. Savoie

Institut canadien de recherche sur le développement régional

Boston

UNWIN HYMAN

London Sydney Wellington

Contents

Preface

List of contributors	page
Introduction: the economics and politics of regional development
Benjamin Higgins and Donald J. Savoie	1
Progress in regional development programming and regional theory development	4
Part I: Perroux	13
Part II: Methods and approaches	15
Part III: Canadian experiences	20
Part IV: Experience in other countries	25
References	27

PART I: PERROUX

1	François Perroux
	Benjamin Higgins	31
	1.1 Perroux's general theory and social philosophy	33
	1.2 Perroux, Keynes, Schumpeter	37
	1.3 Growth poles	41
	References	46
2	The pole of development's new place in a general theory of economic activity
	François Perroux	48
	A Economic analysis	48
	2.1 The pole of development and the general theory of the economy	48
	2.2 Present-day dynamics and the poles of development	51
	B Economic policy and poles of development	54
	2.3 Responses to criticisms of the development pole concept	58
	C An application	61
	2.4 Transnational firms, leading sectors, development poles in less-developed countries	61
	2.5 Towards a general theory of growth-inducing units	67
	Appendix A	73
	Notes	75
	References	76

3	Peregrinations of an economist and the choice of his route
	François Perroux	77
3.1	Peregrinations and acquisitions	78
3.2	Choosing one's path	82
3.3	From extratemporal equilibrium to the temporary exhaustion of the drive for change	84
3.4	From exhaustion of the drive for change to dynamization	86
3.5	From dynamization to regulation	88
	Notes	90
	References	90
4	Growth pole theory and strategy reconsidered: domination, linkages, and distribution
	Karen R. Polenske	91
4.1	Historical context	92
4.2	Comparison of the growth pole theory and strategy with alternatives	95
4.3	Conclusion	108
	References	108
PART II: METHODS AND APPROACHES
5	The politics of place: toward a political economy of territorial planning
	John Friedmann and Yvon Forest	115
5.1	The classical paradigm: a critique	116
5.2	The politics of place: the case of Quebec Province	120
5.3	Propositions concerning the politics of place	124
5.4	Implications for the practice of regional planning	126
	Notes	128
	References	129
6	Population and regional development
	William Alonso	131
6.1	Large regional models, denometrics, and group differences within populations	132
6.2	Migration, regional policy, and the new economic fundamentalism	135
6.3	Magic, regional development and population quality	138
7	A review of techniques for regional policy analysis
	Harry Richardson	142
7.1	Economic base models	143

7.2	Input-output models	144
7.3	Shift-share	146
7.4	Gravity models	147
7.5	Cost-benefit analysis	148
7.6	Structural econometric models	149
7.7	Time-series forecasting models	151
7.8	Demoeconomic models	152
7.9	Integrated multiregional models	154
7.10	Qualitative impact models	156
7.11	Growth poles	157
7.12	Aggregate growth vs. interregional equity	159
7.13	Concluding observations	161
	Notes	163
	References	164
8	A neoclassical approach to regional economics
	Thomas J. Courchene and James R. Melvin	169
8.1	Introduction	169
8.2	The representative consumer	171
8.3	Different consumers within a region	176
8.4	Preference differences in the traditional model	177
8.5	An interregional model with differences in preference	180
8.6	An interregional model with endowment differences	182
8.7	The natural rate of interregional disparities	186
8.8	Conclusions	188
	Notes	189
	References	189
PART III: CANADIAN EXPERIENCES
9	Regional development and efficiency of the national economy
	Benjamin Higgins	193
9.1	The concept of "efficiency"	194
9.2	Market failure	195
9.3	The mechanism of the market	196
9.4	Things the market leaves out	201
9.5	Philosophical underpinnings	202
9.6	Interactions of regional and national development	204
9.7	Conclusion	222
	Notes	222
	References	223
10	Regional development in a federal state
	André Raynauld	225
10.1	The political process in a federal state	225
10.2	Regional transfers of resources in Canada	229

Appendix: factors contributing to income disparities – standardization procedure	240
Notes	241
References	242
11 The influence of unemployment insurance benefits upon the social cost of labor in lagging regions
Fernand Martin	244
11.1 The problem	244
11.2 The definition of the social cost of labor	245
11.3 Types of unemployment	247
11.4 The effects of unemployment insurance benefits upon the employment rate: the theory	248
11.5 Welfare implications of UIB	254
11.6 Empirical measurement of the impact of UIB upon the unemployment rate in Canada	256
11.7 The extent of the underevaluation of the SCL in Canadian cost-benefit studies	259
11.8 Conclusion	262
Appendix: partial distribution of components of total unemployment rate, various periods, Canada and some provinces	260
Notes	262
References	266
12 Regional disparities: a model with some econometric results for Canada
John Vanderkamp	269
12.1 Introduction	269
12.2 The model	272
12.3 Data	278
12.4 Empirical results	280
12.5 Implications and simulations	283
12.6 Concluding comments	290
Appendix: definition of variables	292
Notes	295
References	296

PART IV: EXPERIENCE IN OTHER COUNTRIES

13 Some lessons and implications of the World Bank's experience in urban development
Lloyd Rodwin	299
13.1 The system of international aid	300
13.2 International learning and the training of national bureaucracies	301
13.3 The nature of the urban and regional programs	303

13.4	Why the Bank changed its views in urban policies and programs	306
13.5	Learning by doing?	307
13.6	Ideological and pragmatic critiques	309
13.7	Organizational behavior and implementation	311
13.8	Concluding observations on growth theory and World Bank practice	314
	Notes	316
	References	316
14	Small and medium-size cities in development
	Niles Hansen	318
14.1	City size and city functions: the static setting	318
14.2	City size and city functions: the hierarchical diffusion paradigm	319
14.3	Patterns of urban change	323
14.4	Technology and decentralization	324
14.5	Adaptation to a changing spatial division of labor	326
	References	328
15	Evaluating capital grants for regional development
	Kingsley E. Haynes and Tony Dignan	330
A	Introduction	330
15.1	Microlevel effectiveness of regional policies	331
15.2	Macrolevel effectiveness	338
15.3	Mesolevel effectiveness	339
B	Regional policy: dual perspectives	343
15.4	The United Kingdom	343
15.5	Irish industrial policy for regional development	354
	Notes	372
	References	373
Conclusions
	Benjamin Higgins and Donald J. Savoie	375
	Growth poles	377
	Optimal size of cities	380
	Regional disparities and government intervention	380
	Notes	384
	References	384
	Appendix: The main publications of François Perroux	385
	Index	411