

CONTENTS

Preface xiii

Part One. Introduction 1

1. Political and Economic Systems	3
Plan of the Book	3
The Political-Economic Approach	5
Socialism and Capitalism	6
Arguments for Capitalism	9
Arguments against Socialism	9
Arguments against Capitalism	10
Arguments for Socialism	11
Democracy and Dictatorship	13
Developed and Underdeveloped Economies	14
Hypotheses Concerning Politics and Economics	15
No Necessary Relation	16
Politics Determined by Economics	16
Closely Related, But Not the Same	18
Comparing Economic Systems	23
The Standard of Living	23
Static Efficiency	24
Economic Growth and Dynamic Efficiency	25
Equality of Income Distribution	25
Full Employment and Macroeconomic Stability	26
Economic Freedoms and Noneconomic Factors	26
Controversies among Comparative Economists	28
Recommended Readings	29

Part Two. Market Economies and the Government	31
2. Japan. Business and Government Coordination	33
Background	34
Corporate Structure and Finance	36
Household Savings	41
Labor Market Institutions	43
Lifetime Employment	45
Seniority-based Wages	47
Company Unionism	48
Worker Participation	48
Wages	50
Other Employee Compensation	52
Role of the State	52
Summary and Conclusion	59
Recommended Readings	61
3. Sweden. The Middle Way	62
Background	63
Social Services and Benefits	66
The Cooperative Sector	69
Industrial Democracy	70
Labor Market Characteristics and Policies	74
Fiscal Policy	81
Taxation	83
Monetary Policy	86
Supply Management	88
Capital Formation	90
Conclusion	91
Recommended Readings	92
4. France. Indicative Planning	93
The Monnet Plan	96
Performance of the First Plan	98
Later Plans	99
Performance of Planned Goals	103
The Socialist Government of Mitterrand (1981-)	106
Different Views of Planning and Management	108
Managing the Nationalized Firms	109
Macro Performance under the Mitterrand Government	111
Recommended Readings	114
Part Three. Central Planning: The Soviet Case	115
Soviet Economic Institutions: Differences from the United States	116
Government Ownership of Industry	116

Government Ownership of Agriculture	117
Central Planning	118
Central Planning and the University	118
Public Health, Education, and Housing	120
Soviet Economic Institutions: Similarities to the United States	121
Privately Owned Consumer Goods	121
Work for Money Wages	122
Worker Mobility	123
Plan of Part Three	123
5. USSR. Development from 1917 to 1928	125
Russia before 1917	125
The Immobilization of the Peasant	126
The Extremely Low Level of Agricultural Productivity	127
Political Evolution, 1905–1917	128
War Communism	129
Political Evolution, 1917–1921	133
Socioeconomic Causes of Soviet Dictatorship	135
Czarist Russia	135
The Underground Viewpoint	136
Civil War	136
The Peasant Majority	136
Foreign Intervention	136
Economic Backwardness	138
The New Economic Policy	138
Beginnings of NEP (1921–1923)	139
Agriculture	139
Industry	139
Trade	139
Labor	140
Finance	140
Planning	140
The Scissors Crisis (1923–1924)	141
The End of NEP (1924–1928)	142
Agriculture	142
Industry	145
Trade	146
Finance	146
Planning	147
The Great Debate	149
The Stalinist Solution	153
Recommended Readings	157
6. USSR. Development from 1928 to the Present	158
Political History, 1928 to 1956	158
Economic Backwardness and Rapid Industrialization	159
Political Development, 1956 to the Present	161

Soviet Ideology: Democracy and Dictatorship	162
The First Five-Year Plan (1928–1932)	165
The Second Five-Year Plan (1933–1937)	169
The Third Five-Year Plan (1938–1941)	170
Growth in the 1930s	171
The Second World War (1941–1945)	174
Reconstruction (1945–1950)	174
Soviet Economic Growth, 1950 to the Present	176
Growth in a Centrally Planned Economy	176
Production Is Determined by Capital, Labor, Natural Resources, and Technology	176
Population and Growth	177
Full Capacity Growth	178
The Political-Ethical Issues: Consumption vs. Investment	180
A Statistical Overview of Soviet and U.S. Growth since 1950	182
Industrial Performance	182
Agricultural Performance	182
Consumption Performance	183
Performance of Total Output (GNP)	184
Why the Soviet Economy Has Grown Faster Than the U.S. Economy	184
The Decline of Soviet Growth Rates	185
Soviet Labor Productivity	186
Capital Productivity	187
Combined Factor Productivity	188
The Slowdown in Soviet Growth	190
Consequences of a Maturing Economy	190
Strategic Planning Decisions	191
Systemic Elements	192
Exogenous Factors	193
Appendix 6A. Problems with Soviet Statistics	194
Appendix 6B. Soviet vs. U.S. “Defense Spending”	198
Tentative Conclusions	201
Recommended Readings	202
Recommended Readings for Appendix 6A	203
Recommended Readings for Appendix 6B	203
7. USSR. The Operation of Central Planning	204
Forms of Enterprise	207
The Ministry System	208
The Organization of the Planning Mechanism	210
The Price System	214
Retail Prices of Consumer Goods	215
Prices of Labor Services (Wage Rates)	216
Industrial Wholesale Prices	217
Agricultural Prices	217

The Second Economy	218
Appendix 7A. Soviet Planning for International Trade	220
Method of Planning International Trade	220
The Volume of Trade	221
Recommended Readings	224
Recommended Readings for Appendix 7A	225
8. USSR. Planning for Balance	226
Aggregate Balance	226
No General Unemployment	226
Causes of Inflation	227
The Lack of Balance and Its Cure	229
Problems of Coordination	232
Input-Output Method	234
Problems of the Soviet Balance Method	235
Limitations of Input-Output Method	238
Appendix 8A. The Input-Output Technique	240
Recommended Readings	246
9. USSR. Planning for Efficiency	248
Need for Rational Prices	248
Optimal Conditions and Planning	249
Information and Computation Problems	251
Central and Decentralized Solutions	252
A Tentative Summary of Conclusions	253
The "Law of Value" in the Soviet Union	255
History of the Debate	255
Marxist Economic Laws and Planning Models	260
Prices and Efficiency	262
The Importance of Prices in Soviet Planning	263
Price Policies	264
Summary of the Planning Debate	266
Choice of Technology	267
Decision Making, Democracy, and Efficiency	271
Appendix 9A. Linear Programming in the Soviet
Context	273
An Example	276
Recommended Readings	278
10. USSR. Class Structure: Rulers, Managers, Workers, and
Farmers	280
The Soviet Ruling Class	280
Mobility	284
Soviet Income Distribution and Inequality	285
Stratification of the Soviet Working Class	286
Soviet Managers	289
Soviet Industrial Workers	292

Soviet Agricultural Workers 295
Appendix 10A. Trade Unions 300
 Soviet Trade Unions 300
 Polish Trade Unions 303
 U.S. Trade Unions 310
 Recommended Readings 311

11. USSR. Reform and Regression, after 1965 313
 Political Background of Reform 313
 Marx on Socialism 313
 Socialist Economic Theories 313
 Yugoslav Experience 314
 Economic Problems Leading to Reform 314
 Problems of the Soviet Enterprise 315
 (1) False Reports 316
 (2) Easier Plans 316
 (3) Poorer Quality 317
 (4) Fewer Styles 317
 (5) Easiest Mixture 317
 (6) Extra Supplies 318
 (7) Hidden Reserves 318
 (8) Extra Labor 318
 (9) Storming 318
 (10) Resistance to Innovations 319
 The Liberman Debate 319
 Official Reforms 322
 What Happened to the Reforms? 323
 Fewer Incentive Indicators, Mainly Profitability 324
 Use of Rent and Interest on Capital 325
 Decentralized Investment 325
 Long-term Contracts without Changes 326
 Continuing Contradictions 327
 Recommended Readings 329

Part Four. Central Planning: The Developing Countries 331

12. China. A Changing Model 333
 Background 333
 Economic Development and the Transformation of the Chinese Economy 337
 Great Leap Forward (1958–1960) 339
 The Cultural Revolution 345
 The Post-Mao Reforms 352
 Industrial Reform 353
 Agricultural Reform 357
 Reform Problems 361

Conclusion	362
Recommended Readings	364
13. Cuba. Socialism Next Door	365
Background	367
Early Development Strategy	370
Planning in the 1960s	371
Economic Change, 1970–1975	374
Material Incentives	375
Worker Participation	377
Income Distribution	378
Economic Change since 1975	380
Achievements of the Cuban Revolution	382
Soviet Economic Aid	385
Prospects	389
Conclusion	389
Recommended Readings	391
Part Five. Market Socialism	393
14. The Theory of Market Socialism	395
The Economics of Market Socialism	396
Alternative Market Socialist Models	401
Recommended Readings	402
15. Hungary. Plan and Market	403
Background	403
Early Economic Reform	406
The New Economic Mechanism	407
Agriculture	412
Foreign Trade	415
NEM: The Second Phase	417
Prices	417
Industrial Structure	418
Labor	419
Evaluation	421
Recommended Readings	423
16. Yugoslavia. Self-Management and the Market	424
Early Economic Policy: The Emergence of the Yugoslav Model	426
Economic Reforms of 1965	428
Income Distribution	432
The Economic Theory of Worker Management	434
Yugoslav Worker Management in Practice	438
The Reforms of the 1970s	440

Conclusion 443
Recommended Readings 444

Part Six. Conclusion 447

17. Comparing Economic Systems 449
 General Remarks 449
 Market Decentralization of "Socialist" Economies 450
 Administrative Decentralization of "Socialist"
 Economies 451
 Evaluating Performance 454
 Methodology 454
 Criteria and Performance 456
 Economic Growth 456
 Efficiency 458
 Distribution of Income 460
 Economic Stability 461
 Economic Freedoms 465
 Consumer Choice 465
 Worker Participation 466
 Occupational Choice 467
 Final Remarks 468
 Appendix 17A. A Controlled Comparison: East and West
 Germany 469
 Per Capita Income and Growth 470
 Efficiency 471
 Stability 472
 Income Distribution 472
 Other Criteria 472
 Recommended Readings 473

Index 475