

CONTENTS

Preface . . . . .	5
I Historical Demography and Historical Method . . . . .	7
1 Athenian Citizens versus Citizens in Attica . . . . .	8
2 Citizen Population as a Legal Concept . . . . .	8
3 Age Distribution Based on Analogies . . . . .	9
4 The Athenians' Ignorance of Their Own Number . . . . .	13
5 Army Figures versus Population Figures . . . . .	16
6 Number of Citizens Serving in the Navy . . . . .	21
7 Calculations Based on Consumption of Grain . . . . .	24
II The Number of Citizens in Fourth-Century Athens . . . . .	26
1 Rough Estimates . . . . .	26
2 Counts of Citizens . . . . .	28
3 Army Strengths . . . . .	36
4 Naval Figures . . . . .	43
5 Riciipients of Allowances . . . . .	45
6 Ephebic Inscriptions . . . . .	47
7 The Council of Five Hundred . . . . .	51
Conclusion . . . . .	65
Appendices . . . . .	70
i Athenian Klerouchies in the Fourth Century . . . . .	70
ii Bastards as Athenian Citizens . . . . .	73
iii Ephebic Rosters and Bouleutic Quotas . . . . .	77
iv The age of Athenian Bouleutai . . . . .	80
v The So-called Hoplite Katalogos . . . . .	83
Notes . . . . .	90
Bibliography . . . . .	111