

Table of Contents

|   |     |
|---|-----|
| Introduction: Coherence as a mental entityMorton Ann Gernsbacher and T. Givón  | vii |
| Negotiating coherence in dialogueAnne H. Anderson  | 1   |
| The negotiation of coherence in face-to-face interactionSome examples from the extreme boundsJennifer Coates     | 41  |
| Coherence in text vs. coherence in mindT. Givón  | 59  |
| The negotiation of coherence within conversationCharles Goodwin  | 117 |
| How readers construct situation models for storiesThe role of syntactic cues and causal inferencesWalter Kintsch | 139 |
| Aspects of coherence in written language: a psychological perspectiveAnthony J. Sanford and Linda M. Moxey           | 161 |
| Explanatory coherence in understanding and talking about eventsTom Trabasso, Soyoungh Suh and Paula Payton           | 189 |
| Improving coherence in written communicationMatthew J. Traxler and Morton Ann Gernsbacher                            | 215 |
| Coherence in collaboration: Some examples from conversationDeanna Wilkes-Gibbs                                       | 239 |