

Contents

Translator's Preface	xi
Preface	xiii
Acknowledgements	xix
PROLOGUE Flaubert, Analyst of Flaubert: A Reading of Sentimental Education	1
Places, Investments, Displacements	4
The Question of Inheritance	9
Necessary Accidents	20
The Power of Writing	25
Flaubert's Formula	28
Appendix 1: Summary of Sentimental Education	35
Appendix 2: Four Readings of Sentimental Education	37
Appendix 3: The Paris of Sentimental Education	40
PART I Three States of the Field
1 The Conquest of Autonomy: The Critical Phase in the Emergence of the Field	47
A Structural Subordination	48
Bohemia and the Invention of an Art of Living	54

The Rupture with the 'Bourgeois'	57
Baudelaire the Founder	60
The First Calls to Order	68
A Position to be Made	71
The Double Rupture	77
An Economic World Turned Upside Down	81
Positions and Dispositions	85
Flaubert's Point of View	87
Flaubert and 'Realism'	91
'Write the Mediocre Well'	94
Return to Sentimental Education	100
The Imposition of Form	103
The Invention of the 'Pure' Aesthetic	105
The Ethical Conditions of the Aesthetic Revolution	109
2 The Emergence of a Dualist Structure	113
The Particularities of Genres	114
Differentiation of Genres and Unification of the Field	117
Art and Money	121
The Dialectic of Distinction	126
Specific Revolutions and External Changes	127
The Invention of the Intellectual	129
The Exchanges between Painters and Writers	131
For Form	138
3 The Market for Symbolic Goods	141
Two Economic Logics	142
Two Modes of Ageing	146
Leave a Mark	154
The Logic of Change	159
Homologies and the Effect of Pre-established Harmony	161
The Production of Belief	166
PART II Foundations of a Science of Works of Art
1 Questions of Method	177
A New Scientific Spirit	178
Literary Doxa and Resistance to Objectification	184
The 'Original Project', Founding Myth	187
Thersites' Viewpoint and the False Rupture	191

The Space of Points of View	193
Bypassing the Alternatives	205
To Objectify the Subject of Objectification	206
Appendix: The Total Intellectual and the Illusion of the Omnipotence of Thought	209
2 The Author's Point of View: Some General Properties of Fields of Cultural Production	214
The Literary Field in the Field of Power	215
The Nomos and the Question of Boundaries	223
The Illusio and the Work of Art as Fetish	227
Position, Disposition and Position-taking	231
The Space of Possibles	234
Structure and Change: Internal Struggles and Permanent Revolution	239
Reflexivity and 'Naiveté'	242
Supply and Demand	249
Internal Struggles and External Sanctions	252
The Meeting of Two Histories	256
The Constructed Trajectory	258
The Habitus and the Possibles	261
The Dialectic of Positions and Dispositions	264
Formation and Dissolution of Groups	267
A Transcendence of Institution	270
'The Impious Dismantling of the Fiction'	274
Appendix: Field Effect and Forms of Conservatism	278

PART III To Understand Understanding

1 The Historical Genesis of the Pure Aesthetic	285
Analysis of Essence and Illusion of the Absolute	286
Historical Anamnesis and the Return of the Repressed	290
Historical Categories of Artistic Perception	295
The Conditions of Pure Reading	302
Poverty of Ahistoricism	306
Double Historicization	309
2 The Social Genesis of the Eye	313
The Quattrocento Eye	315
The Foundation of the Charismatic Illusion	319

3	A Theory of Reading in Practice	322
	A Reflecting Story	324
	Time of Reading and Reading of Time	326
	DA CAPO Illusion and the Illusio	331
	POSTSCRIPT For a Corporatism of the Universal	337
	Notes	349
	Index of Names	397
	Subject Index	405