

contents

|                                 |             |
|---------------------------------|-------------|
| contributors             | v    |
| preface                  | ix   |
| list of tables           | xvii |
| list of figures and maps | xxi  |

part I the role of child-spacing

|   |          |
|---|----------|
| 1 child-spacing and fertility in sub-Saharan Africa: an overview of issues | 3 |
|---|----------|

R. LESTHAEGHE, P. O. OHADIKE, J. KOCHER and H. J. PAGE

|   |  |    |
|---|--|----|
| 1 | Introduction   | 3  |
| 2 | Intermediate fertility variables                               | 4  |
| 3 | Child-spacing in its traditional context                       | 13 |
| 4 | Economic and social change, child-spacing and fertility trends | 16 |
|   | Endnotes   | 21 |
|   | References   | 22 |

|  |           |
|--|-----------|
| 2 the child-spacing tradition and the postpartum taboo in tropical Africa: anthropological evidence | 25 |
|--|-----------|

R. SCHOENMAECKERS, I. H. SHAH, R. LESTHAEGHE and O. TAMBASHE

|   |   |    |
|---|---|----|
| 1 | Introduction  | 25 |
| 2 | The geographic distribution of the postpartum taboo | 26 |
| 3 | The Whiting and Saucier hypotheses                  | 39 |
| 4 | Conclusions   | 42 |
|   | APPENDIX  | 43 |
|   | References  | 65 |

3 the function of child-spacing in traditional societies and the direction of change 73

P. CALDWELL and J. C. CALDWELL

- 1 Background 76
- 2 The relationship between lactation and abstinence 79
- 3 Explanations for child-spacing: traditions and mores of the community 79
- 4 Explanations for abstaining given by contemporary individuals 81
- 5 The decision to abstain and to cease abstaining 83
- 6 The maintenance of child-spacing: social control of abstinence 84
- 7 Family structure and the importance attached to sexuality 86
- 8 The impact of contraception 88
- 9 The direction and sequence of change 89
- Endnotes 90
- References 91

4 birth intervals, postpartum sexual abstinence and child health 93

R. H. GRAY

- 1 The effect of birth intervals on maternal and child health 93
- 2 Pregnancy, lactation and postpartum amenorrhoea 100
- 3 The effects of pregnancy on lactation 102
- 4 The importance of breast-feeding for child health 103
- 5 Summary and conclusions 107
- References 107

5 the impact on fertility of traditional and changing child-spacing practices 111

J. BONGAARTS

- 1 A framework for the analysis of the intermediate fertility variables 112
- 2 Application of the analytical framework 117
- 3 The fertility impact of changes in postpartum non-susceptibility 121
- 4 The combined impact of contraception and postpartum infecundability 126
- Endnotes 129
- References 129

part II case studies*introduction to the case studies*133

H. J. PAGE

- 1 Content and orientation of the case studies 133
- 2 Some practical issues in the study of child-spacing 135
- Endnotes 144
- References 145

6 child-spacing and fertility in Lagos*147

R. LESTHAEGHE, H. J. PAGE and O. ADEGBOLA

- 1 The Lagos Parity Study: general information 148
- 2 Child-spacing patterns by education 149
- 3 Social determinants of breast-feeding and postpartum abstinence 157
- 4 Implications for fertility: the balance between child-spacing, age at marriage and family size limitation 168
- 5 Conclusions 173
- Endnotes 176
- References 179

7 cause and sequence in the reduction of postnatal abstinence in Ibadan City, Nigeria*181

J. C. CALDWELL and P. CALDWELL

- 1 The evidence from the relative length of abstinence 182
- 2 The separate impacts on abstinence of the more important individual influences 186
- 3 Who practises family planning? 187
- 4 Why is the postnatal abstinence period shortened? 189
- 5 Why is contraception adopted? 190
- 6 A model of change in the duration of postnatal abstinence 192
- 7 Problems for modellers and problems for the community 194
- Endnotes 198
- References 199

8 patterns of postpartum sexual abstinence and their implications for fertility in Ibadan, Nigeria 201

G. SANTOW and M. BRACHER

- 1 Estimates of fertility in Ibadan City 201
- 2 Reported and approved abstinence: the effect of education 205
- 3 Regression analysis of factors affecting attitudes to postpartum abstinence 208
- 4 Implications for fertility 214
- Endnotes 218
- References 219
- APPENDIX TO CHAPTERS 7 AND 8 220
- References 223

9 child-spacing among rural Yoruba women: Ekiti and Ibadan divisions in Nigeria 225

I. O. ORUBULOYE

- 1 The survey area 225
- 2 Overall fertility levels 227
- 3 Postpartum abstinence patterns and differentials 229
- 4 The impact of postpartum abstinence on fertility 233
- 5 Conclusions 234
- Endnotes 235
- References 235

10 child-spacing patterns and fertility differentials in Ghana 237

S. K. GAISIE

- 1 Introduction 237
- 2 The postpartum variables: comparison of retrospectively reported and current status data 240
- 3 Postpartum variables: analysis of differentials 246
- 4 Postpartum variables and fertility levels 249
- 5 Conclusions 252
- Endnotes 252
- References 252

11 child-spacing in Togo: the Southeast Togo Survey (EFSE) 255

T. LOCOH and G. ADABA

- 1 The population of the study region 256
- 2 Fertility levels and child-spacing behaviour 257
- 3 Differentials, trends and social change 260
- Endnotes 262
- References 262

12 the Senegalese surveys 265

B. FERRY

- 1 Fertility levels and differentials 265
- 2 Child-spacing patterns 268
- 3 Conclusions 272
- Endnotes 273
- References 273

13 child-spacing, ecology and nutrition in the Kivu province of Zaire 275

M. CARAËL

- 1 Economy and ecology of the area 275
- 2 Traditional child-spacing practices 277
- 3 Rural-urban differentials 280
- 4 Implications for fertility 283
- References 285

14 fertility and child-spacing in western Zaire 287

M. SALA-DIAKANDA, NGONDO A PITSHANDENGE, D. TABUTIN
and E. VILQUIN

- 1 Child-spacing 289
- 2 Sterility 294
- References 299

part III policy implications15 the policy implications of changes in child-spacing practices in tropical Africa 303

A. L. MABOGUNJE

- |   |  |     |
|---|--|-----|
| 1 | Salient features of traditional child-spacing practices          | 305 |
| 2 | Factors inducing wide-ranging changes in child-spacing practices | 307 |
| 3 | Contextuality of policy issues                                   | 309 |
| 4 | Constraints on policy formulation and implementation             | 312 |
| 5 | Conclusion   | 314 |
|   | Endnotes   | 315 |
|   | References   | 315 |

author index 317*ethnic group index 321*subject index 323*series list 331