

CONTENTS

	Page
List of figures	v
List of tables	ix
Addresses of contributors	xi
Acknowledgements	xiii
1
The site
1.1	Introduction: aims and beginning of the project 1
1.2	Local setting 1
1.3	Discovery: aerial survey, field walking, geophysical measurements 2
1.4	Excavations 4
1.5	Investigations of the soils (Bertold Hofmann, transl. by B.S. Ottaway) 6
2
The structural evidence
2.1	The middle Neolithic Oberlauterbach group 9
2.2	The late Neolithic Altheim culture 9
2.3	The final Neolithic Cham culture 14
2.4	The Iron Age Hallstatt culture 35
Material Evidence
Ceramics
3
The final Neolithic Cham ceramics (Barbara Chapman and Melanie Giles)
3.1	Introduction 71
3.2	Fabric sequence 71
3.3	Form sequence 74
3.4	Use and discard 77
3.5	Decorative techniques 78
3.6	Methods of manufacture 79
3.7	Summary 80
3.8	Ceramic distributions 80
3.9	Secure dating of features and problems of residuality 88
3.10	Conclusion 88
3.11	Other ceramic artefacts 89
3.12	Conclusion 92
4
The Iron Age Hallstatt ceramics (Cordula Nagler-Zanier, transl. by B.S. Ottaway)
4.1	Hallstatt ditch systems on the Galgenberg 125
4.2	Description of the ceramics 125
4.3	Vessel forms 126
4.4	Dating 127
4.5	Results and conclusions 128
Bones
5
Animal remains (Margaret Glass)
5.1	The faunal sample 137
5.2	Methodology 137
5.3	Cultural periods 139
5.4	Comparison of Cham contexts 143
5.5	Animal taxa at the Galgenberg 148
5.6	Human remains 155
5.7	Summary and conclusions 156

		Page
6	The worked bone (Glyn Davies)
	6.1 Introduction	157
	6.2 Typology	157
	6.3 Manufacturing techniques	161
	6.4 Species and skeletal element utilisation	162
	6.5 Analysis	163
	6.6 Conclusions	165
Stones
7	Flints of the Cham culture (Margarethe Uerpmann, transl. by H.-P. Uerpmann)
	7.1 Introduction	175
	7.2 Basic subdivision of the material	175
	7.3 Raw material	176
	7.4 Primary production	178
	7.5 Secondary production and use modification	179
	7.6 Tool types	181
	7.7 Conclusion	191
8	Stones and stone tools: geological report (Rolf Bolten)
	8.1 Introduction	199
	8.2 Description of rocks	199
	8.3 Discussion and conclusions	201
9	The stone tools (David Gale)
	9.1 General comments	203
	9.2 Hammerstones	203
	9.3 Abraders	205
	9.4 Quernstones	206
	9.5 Ground stone tools	206
	9.6 Reuse	209
	9.7 Burnt cobbles	209
	9.8 Conclusions	209
Other material evidence
10	Daub
	10.1 Introduction	217
	10.2 Methodology	217
	10.3 The daub	219
	10.4 The wood	220
	10.5 Functional interpretation and summary	225
	10.6 Conclusions	226
Environmental Evidence
11	Charred fruits and seeds (Pat Hinton)
	11.1 Introduction and methods	227
	11.2 Altheim period	227
	11.3 Cham period	231
	11.4 Discussion	234
12	Charcoal (Maisie Taylor)
	12.1 Introduction	237
	12.2 Samples analysed	237
	12.3 Discussion of results	237
	12.4 Conclusions	238

	Page
Dating
13 Absolute chronology of the Cham enclosure
13.1 Introduction	239
13.2 The samples	239
13.3 Interpretation of the radiocarbon dates	243
13.4 Setting the Galgenberg dates into a wider context	244
13.5 Conclusion	245
Overview and Conclusion
14 The Galgenberg: a changing place. Overview, context and conclusions
14.1 Introduction	247
14.2 The Oberlauterbach Group or the South-East Bavarian Middle Neolithic (SOB)	247
14.3 The late Neolithic Altheim culture	248
14.4 The final Neolithic Cham culture	251
14.5 The Iron Age Hallstatt culture	269
References	271
Zusammenfassung	279

Appendices on CD at the back of the volume

3.1	Ceramic database
3.2	Spindle whorls database
3.3	Loomweights database
3.4	Fireplates/firebricks database
3.5	Database of other ceramic artefacts
4.1	Katalog der Hallstatt Keramik
4.2	Die hallstattzeitlichen Grabensysteme auf dem Galgenberg
5.1	Identification of animal bones
5.2	Osteometric data for all taxa of animal bones
6.1	Catalogue of bone tools
7.1	Feuersteinartefakte der Chamer Kultur vom Galgenberg bei Kopfham
9.1	Catalogue of stone tools including their rock identification
12.1	Catalogue of charcoal samples and their identification
13.1	¹⁴ C dates of the Cham culture from seven sites in Bavaria