

Contents

Preface	viii
1 Why Corporatism?
Introduction	1
Competing paradigms	1
The need for a new approach	4
A dualist strategy	6
The differences explored	6
Conclusion	19
2 What is Corporatism?
Corporatism as post-capitalism	22
Corporatism as state form	24
Corporatism as interest intermediation	25
Pluralism as an ideal type	27
Corporatism as an ideal type	32
A continuum between pluralism and corporatism	39
Closure and the dynamic of concentration	41
Corporate pluralism and corporatism: the British case	42
3 Corporatism and the Question of the State
What is the state? – pluralist views	46
Critiques of pluralist conceptions of the state	48
Neo-Marxist theories of the state	49
Structural and organisational factors	54
The nature of the state	57
The basis of state power	58
Functions of the state	60

Economic policy	62
State power and social stratification	65
Conclusion	66
4 Varieties of Corporatism
Introduction	68
Corporatism-1 and Corporatism-2	69
Variations in levels of organisation	71
Policy scope and relevant interests	73
At least three partners?	75
Summary: varieties of corporatism	77
Conclusion	82
5 Macro-Corporatism
Trade unions	84
Business organisation	87
Cross-national comparisons	89
Macro-corporatism and the tax-welfare system	90
Macro-corporatism and 'governability'	92
Macro-corporatism and unemployment	94
Discussion	97
Austria as an ideal type	100
Discussion	103
6 Meso- and Micro-Corporatism
Meso-corporatism and sectoral interests	107
Industrial policy	113
Social and welfare policy	115
Micro-corporatism	118
Micro-corporatism in land-use planning	121
The need for further research	122
Levels of corporatism	123
7 Dualism and Democracy
Production and consumption	127
Transfer payments	131
State intervention	133
Levels of the state	136
Competition, closure and dual politics	140
Dualism and democracy	145

Contents

	vii
Conclusion	147
Notes	150
References	159
Index	170