

Contents

Acknowledgements	vii
A Note on Editions	viii
1 Introduction: the Dickens Phenomenon and the Dickens Industry	1
I Everybody's writer	1
II Dickens in the nineteenth century: some contemporary critical issues	6
III Dickens in relation to criticism in the twentieth century	11
2 The Making of the Novelist and the Shaping of the Novel, 1835–41	23
I Street-walking with the painter of modern life: Sketches by Boz	24
II The periodical essay as novel: The Posthumous Papers of the Pickwick Club	37
III 'Connected works of fiction of a higher grade': Oliver Twist and scenes of suffering	42
IV 'Detachable sketches and artificial bits': Nicholas Nickleby	50
V A retrospective turn: Master Humphrey's Clock	57
VI Walks on the wild side: The Old Curiosity Shop	59
VII History through the keyhole: Barnaby Rudge	68
3 Travails in Hyper-Reality, 1842–8	78
I 'Here be monsters': Martin Chuzzlewit	78
II Redemptive fictions in 'a whimsical kind of masque': the Christmas Books, 1843–8	89

4	Mid-Victorian Self-Fashionings, 1846–50	98
I	Making the family firm? Dombey and Son	98
II	The gendered subject of writing: David Copperfield	109
5	The Novelist as Journalist in Hard Times, 1850–7	122
I	‘The spirit of the people and the time’: Household Words	122
II	Anatomizing Britain: Bleak House	129
III	Setting the muddle to rights? Hard Times	139
IV	‘The inquest into contemporary civilization’: Little Dorrit	146
6	These Times of Ours, 1858–70	156
I	Trading places: All the Year Round	156
II	Making history: A Tale of Two Cities	160
III	Lost illusions: Great Expectations	165
IV	The ways we live now: Our Mutual Friend	172
V	The sense of unending: The Mystery of Edwin Drood	180
	Notes	189
	Index	202