

Contents

Deictic conceptualisation of space, time and person: Introduction Friedrich Lenz	vii
PART 1: SPACE	1
‘Addressee effects’ in demonstrative systems: The cases of Tiriyo and Brazilian Portuguese Sérgio Meira	3
Deictics in the conversational dyad: Findings in Spanish and some cross-linguistic outlines Konstanze Jungbluth	13
Non-deictic uses of the deictic motion verbs kommen and gehen in German Claudio Di Meola	41
Origo, pointing, and conceptualization — what gestures reveal about the nature of the origo in face-to-face interaction Ellen Fricke	69
PART 2: TIME	95
Two ways of construing complex temporal structures Christiane von Stutterheim, Mary Carroll and Wolfgang Klein	97
“Look here, what I am saying!”: Speaker deixis and implicature as the basis of modality and future tense Thomas A. Fritz	135
The ‘subjective’ effects of negation and past subjunctive on deontic modals: The case of German dürfen and sollen Tanja Mortelmans	153

PART 3: PERSON AND TEXT	183
Politeness distinctions in second person pronouns Johannes Helmbrecht	185
Deictic use of demonstrative pronouns in the Rigveda Katharina Kupfer	203
Towards a unified model of domain-bound reference Manfred Consten	223
Deixis and speech situation revisited: The mechanism of perceived perception Heiko Hausendorf	249
Index	271