

Contents

Introduction 9

Acknowledgements 13

---

1 Why are Native Americans (still) Called “Indians”? The Illuminating Example of Giovanni di Paolo’s Quattrocento Mappamundi.
John F. Moffitt 14

---

2 Between Science and Art: The European Representation of America, 1500–1800
Friedrich Polleroß 44

---

3 “Een West-Indien Landtschap met Vreemt Ghebouw”: Jan Mostaert on the Architectural Primitivism Characterizing a “Golden Age” Reborn in the New World
John F. Moffitt 102

---

4 Cooper, Cole, and The Last of the Mohicans
Elwood C. Parry III 146

---

5 Carpeaux’s America: Art and Sculptural Politics
Lisa Salay Miller 196

---

6 Nineteenth Century Haida Argillite Carvings: Documents of Cultural Encounter
Robin K. Wright 224

---

7 “Maids of Palastine”: Pueblo Pots, Potters, and the Politics of Representation
Barbara Babcock 246

---

8 Art and Indian Culture at the Crossroads of a New Century: A Postlude to the Exhibition “Lost and Found Traditions: Native American Art 1965–1985”
Ralph T. Coe 268

---

9 The Collection of the North and Central American Department of the Museum für Volkerkunde, Vienna
Gerard W. van Bussel 302

---