

Contents

Introduction by Umberto Eco vii

Preface 1

Notes to Preface 6

PART ONE

THE TEXT AS A MEANING-GENERATING MECHANISM

1 Three functions of the text 11

2 Autocommunication: 'I' and 'Other' as addressees 20

3 Rhetoric as a mechanism for meaning-generation 36

4 Iconic rhetoric 54

5 The text as process of movement: author to audience,
author to text 63

6 The symbol as plot-gene 82

7 The symbol in the cultural system 102

Notes to Part One 111

PART TWO

THE SEMIOSPHERE

8 Semiotic space 123

9 The notion of boundary 131

10 Dialogue mechanisms 143

11 The semiosphere and the problem of plot 151

12 Symbolic spaces 171

1. Geographical space in Russian medieval texts 171

2. The journey of Ulysses in Dante's Divine Comedy	177
3. The 'home' in Bulgakov's The Master and Margarita	185
4. The symbolism of St Petersburg	191
13 Some conclusions	203
Notes to Part Two	204
PART THREE
CULTURAL MEMORY, HISTORY AND SEMIOTICS
14 The problem of the historical fact	217
15 Historical laws and the structure of the text	221
16 An alternative: culture without literacy or culture before culture?	245
17 The role of typological symbols in the history of culture	254
18 Can there be a science of history and what are its functions in the cultural system?	269
19 Conclusion	273
Notes to Part Three	274
Index	281