

Contents

Preface	V
Contents.....	VII
Introduction	1
1. A Historical Survey of Research	1
2. Attempts to Understand the Transitions between the Individual and the Collective in Previous Research.....	10
2.1 H. W. Robinson's Concept of "Corporate Personality"	10
2.2 Sigmund Mowinckel's Concept of "Great Ego"	16
2.3 "Polysemie" by Hans-Peter Müller	17
2.4 "Rollendichtung" by Jürgen van Oorschot	18
2.5 "Multiperspektivität" by Bernd Janowski	20
2.6 Evaluation of the Different Models and the Oriental Background.....	21
3. The Aim of This Study and Presentation of Methods	25
I. Collective Features in Exilic and Early Post-Exilic Texts	37
1. The Composition of Deutero-Isaiah (Isa 40–55)	37
1.1 The Origin of the Servant Songs.....	38
1.2 The Identity of the Servant.....	41
2. The Origin and 'Sitz im Leben' of Lamentations.....	49
2.1 Combination of Individual and Collective Features in Lamentations	53
3. The Composition of the Deuteronomistic History.....	55
3.1 National Emphases in the Theology of DtrN.....	61
4. Conclusion.....	65
II. The Genre and 'Sitz im Leben' of the Psalms	67
1. The Canonical Approach.....	67
2. The Genres of the Psalms and Their Characteristic Features	69
3. Salvation Oracles in Individual Complaints	71
4. Traditional Prayer	75
5. The Altered 'Sitz im Leben' of the Psalms: Messianic, Theocratic and Collective Interpretations	78
6. Excursus: The Communal Laments of the Psalter	81
7. Conclusion.....	83

III. Collective Reinterpretation in the Psalms	85
1. Psalm 22	85
1.1 Translation of Ps 22 and Textual Criticism.....	85
1.2 Remarks on the Colometry of Ps 22	95
1.3 Lexical Connections with Other Psalms and Other Old Testament Texts	97
1.4 The Basic Text and Redaction of Ps 22	99
2. Psalm 69	105
2.1 Translation of Ps 69 and Textual Criticism.....	105
2.2 Remarks on the Colometry of Ps 102	111
2.3 Lexical Connections with Other Psalms and Other Old Testament Texts	112
2.4 The Basic Text and Redaction of Ps 69	114
3. Psalm 102	118
3.1 Translation of Ps 102 and Textual Criticism.....	118
3.2 Remarks on the Colometry of Ps 102	124
3.3 Lexical Connections with Other Psalms and Other Old Testament Texts	125
3.4 The Basic Text and Redaction of Ps 102	126
4. Psalm 89	135
4.1 The Composition of Ps 89	135
4.2 Collective Features in Ps 89	142
5. Collective Passages in Various Psalms	144
5.1 Ps 3:9	144
5.2 Ps 14:7 (Ps 53:7)	146
5.3 Ps 25:22	147
5.4 Ps 28:8–9	149
5.5 Ps 29:10–11.....	150
5.6 Ps 30:5–6	154
5.7 Ps 34:23	157
5.8 Ps 51:20–21.....	158
5.9 Ps 73:1	159
5.10 Ps 148:14	165
6. Collective Features in the Songs of Ascents	167
6.1 Concluding Doxology in Ps 125	168
6.2 “Let Israel Say” (לְאָמַר יִשְׂרָאֵל) in Ps 129	169
6.3 Ps 130:7–8 and Ps 131:3.....	171
6.4 The Redaction History of Ps 132	173
7. The Collective Use of the Term תְּפִלָּה in Post-Exilic Theology	177
7.1 Ps 2.....	178
7.2 Ps 84:10	187
7.3 The Psalm of Habakkuk (Particularly Hab 3:13a).....	190
8. Conclusion.....	192
IV. The Nature and Extent of Collective Redaction.....	195
1. Introduction to the Formation of the Psalter	195
2. The Problem of the Elohistic Psalter (Pss 42–83)	195
3. The Growth Process of the Psalter.....	197
4. The Fivefold Book Division of the Psalter	199
5. Attempts to Date the Final Form of the Psalter	202

6. Beyond the Redactions of the Psalter.....	205
7. Collective Terminology in the Collectivizingly Reworked Psalms.....	210
8. The Significance of 11QPs ^a for Redaction Theories of the Psalter.....	217
8.1 Background	217
8.2 The Textual Form and Content of 11QPs ^a	221
8.3 Editorial Principles of 11QPs ^a	223
8.4 11QPs ^a Compared with Other Psalms Scrolls Found at Qumran.....	228
8.5 Is 11QPs ^a Qumranic or Pre-Qumranic?.....	229
8.6 11QPs ^a and the Collective Redaction of the Psalter	231
9. Conclusion.....	233
 Summary	235
 Bibliography.....	241
Source Index.....	259
Author Index.....	271
Subject Index.....	275