

CONTENTS

Acknowledgments	vii
Introduction	1
Alison A. Carr-Chellman
Matrix of Case Studies	14
Part I: Online Education in Asia: An Analysis of China, Taiwan, and India	17
1. China's Online Education: Rhetoric and Realities	21
Ke Zhang
2. The Gap Between E-Learning Availability and E-Learning Industry Development in Taiwan	33
Jiang Jia Qi
3. Distance Education and Online Technologies in India	52
Priya Sharma
Part II: Online Education in Europe: An Analysis of Ireland, the United Kingdom, Turkey, and International Study Circles	67
4. Online Learning and Differential Participation in a Democratic Society: Ireland as a Case Study	71
Sarah FitzPatrick and Paul Conway
5. E-Learning, Democracy, and Social Exclusion: Issues of Access and Retention in the United Kingdom	89
Ormond Simpson
6. International Study Circles	101
Ben Salt
7. A Critical Look at Distance Education in Turkey	115
Husra Gursoy

Part III: Online Education in North America: An Analysis of the U.S. and Canadian Contributions	127
8. Canada's SchoolNet: Wiring Up Schools? Leslie R. Shade and Diane Y. Dechief	131
9. The New Frontier: Web-Based Education in U.S. Culture Alison A. Carr-Chellman	145
Part IV: Online Education Down Under: An Analysis of Aotearoa/New Zealand and Australia	161
10. New Zealand: Is Online Education a Highway to the Future? Bill Anderson	163
11. Towards Borderless Virtual Learning in Higher Education Colin Latchem	179
Part V: Online Education in Africa: An Analysis of Namibia and Sub-Saharan Africa	199
12. Development and Democracy in Namibia: The Contribution of Information and Communication Technologies (ICTs) R. Kavena Shalyefu and Hilda Nakakuwa	205
13. Can You Lead From Behind? Critical Reflections on the Rhetoric of E-Learning, Open Distance Learning, and ICTs for Development in Sub-Saharan Africa (SSA) Wayne Mackintosh	222
14. Stalled: E-Learning as Thwarted Innovation Robert Zemsky and William F. Massy	241
Conclusion Alison A. Carr-Chellman	257
Index	261
About the Editor	275
About the Contributors	277