

Contents

General Editors' Preface	vi
Acknowledgements	vii
Introduction	1
1 The Mind and Body	11
The Power of the Body	14
The Unpredictable Subject: Eliot's Physical Language of the Self	26
2 The History of the Self: The Formation of Mind	47
Instinct and Heredity: Darwin	52
Eliot and Spencer: Memory and the Formation of the Mind	69
3 The Possibilities of Emotion	87
Emotion and the Body	89
Emotion and the Social Organism	92
The Fluidity of Emotion	97
Emotion, Reason and the Seed within the Self	103
Containing Emotion: Deronda	113
4 The Will, Consciousness, the Unconscious	119
The Problematic Concept of the Will	122
The Will and 'Personality'	129
The Conscious Mind	134
The Unconscious	147
5 The Science of 'Spirit': The Mind and Religious Experience	161
The Context of Eliot's Faith	164
Faith and Form	170
Faith and the Self: Romola	173
Faith and Science: Daniel Deronda	180
Conclusion: 'Separate yet Combined'	189
Bibliography	197
Index	207