

Table of contents

Abbreviations	vii
List of figures and tables	viii
Introduction	xi
Contrastive Analysis and the language learner: a new lease of life? Carl James	1
Recent advances in contrastive linguistics and language typology: the spin-off for language teachers Christian Mair	21
Teaching contrastive rhetoric(s): bridging the gap between English language competence and academic success in English for the non-native speaker Tamsin Sanderson	41
Cross-language homonymy and polysemy: a semantic view of “false friends” D. J. Allerton and Judith Wieser	57
Problems of adverbial placement in Learner English and the British National Corpus Chris Gledhill	85
Corpora and language teaching: what learner corpora have to offer Nadja Nesselhauf	105
Error Analysis with computer learner corpora: a corpus-based study of errors in the written German of British university students Ursula Weinberger	119
The comprehension and acquisition of metaphorical and idiomatic phrases in L2 English Judith Wieser	131
CALL and linguistics Cornelia Tschichold	147
Swiss English or simply non-native English? A discussion of two possible features Yvonne Dröschel, Mercedes Durham and Lukas Rosenberger	161

English teaching and learning in Hong Kong R. Shui-Ching Ho	177
Universal Grammar and Second Language Acquisition Pius ten Hacken	191
Index	205