

Table of Contents

0.	INTRODUCTION	7
1.	THE STORIED SELF IN MORAL SPACE	11
1.1	The Ethical Turn in Literary Criticism, or: Essays in Retrieval	11
1.2	Facing Contingency: Fragmentations of Self and Morality	15
1.3	Inescapable Frameworks and Shifting Horizons: Towards a Narrative Concept of the Self	19
2.	SETTING THE SCENE: THE POSTMODERN CHALLENGE TO THE SELF	25
2.1	A Whole Supermarket of Theories: Exploring the Panorama of Ian McEwan's Novels	25
2.2	Rising to the Challenge: Narrative (Self)-Creation	31
3.	UNFOLDING THE MAP OF LIFE: LOCATING THE SELF	39
3.1	Being a Self to Yourself: Identity and Orientation	39
3.2	Self Among Other Selves : Autonomy versus Commitment	43
4.	TAKING PERSPECTIVES: STORIES OF THE SELF	49
4.1	The Poly-Storied Self : Selfhood and Cultural Tradition	49
4.2	The Two Cultures Debate: Science versus Literature	51
4.3	Metaphysician Meets Ironist: Rationalism, Scientism, and Mysticism	61
5.	AT THE CROSSROADS: THE IMPACT OF THE SINGULAR ON THE CONCEPT OF THE SELF	71
5.1	Dealing with Epistemological Crises: Redescriptions and New Horizons	71
5.2	Love, Loss, and Guilt: The Emotional Geography of the Self	81
6.	JOURNEY'S END: ACHIEVING 'AT-ONE-MENT'?	87
6.1	Towards Greater Solidarity: Introducing the Liberal Ironist	87
6.2	Tying Knots and Closing Questions?	91

7.	CONCLUSION	97
8.	WORKS CITED	101