

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Note on Abbreviations.....	xi
Acknowledgements	xiii
Introduction	1
1. The Focus on the Letter	4
2. The Letter as a Romantic Fragment.....	8
3. Overview of Scholarly Results	13
4. Structure of the Study	22
Chapter One.....	27
The Romantic Letter, the Reader and, the Canon(s) of Romanticism
Part 1. The Romantic Letter.....	27
1.1 Formal Aspects of the Letter.....	29
1.1.1 Letter as a Genre	29
1.1.2 Attributes of the Letter.....	31
1.2 The Romantic Letter: Spaces for Performances.....	38
1.3 The Romantic Letter as a Discourse of Romanticism.....	45
Part 2. The Reader	48
2.1 Revolution of Reading and the Romantic Reader.....	49
2.2 Theory of the Reader	52
2.2.1 Implications of the Text and the Reader's Imagination in the Act of Interpretation.....	52
2.2.2 The Roles of the Reader.....	55
2.2.2.1 Distancing and Horizioning the Reader	55
2.2.2.2 Communities of Readers.....	61
2.2.2.3 Reader's Personality	64
2.2.3 Gendered Approach to Reading.....	68

Part 3. Romanticism and Its Canon(s)	75
3.1 Danger of a Canon	76
3.2 Shifting the Romantic Canon.....	80
3.3 The Alternative Canon of the Romantic Correspondence.....	85
Chapter Two	97
Romanticism Gendered: Analyses
Part 1. Varieties of Reading Situations	97
1.1 Collective Readings	99
1.1.1 The Cult Object of Susannah Centlivre	99
1.1.2 The Brand Name ‘Ann Radcliff’	107
1.2 Individual Readings	115
1.2.1 The Poetic Flirtation of Coleridge and Mary Robinson	115
1.2.2 The Travelling and Up-to-date Reader: Byron	127
1.2.3 The First Reader and Public Promoter: The Case of Mary Shelley.....	141
Part 2. The Poet as Professional Reader of Poetry: William Wordsworth	150
2.1 Wordsworth’s Revisions of the 1825 edition of Specimens of British Poetesses	152
2.1.1 Men’s “Gallantry”: Women’s Poetry Anthologised	152
2.1.2 Romantic Canonisation: Specimens of British Poetesses Revisited	155
2.1.3 The “Stream of Reading” of Lady Winchelsea’s Poetry.....	163
2.2 Wordsworth as an Obligated and Obliging Mentor	175
2.2.1 Dedication as a Motive for Reception.....	175
2.2.2 The Pattern of Obligation.....	177
2.2.3 Private Lectures on Creative Writing.....	188
2.2.4 The Right to Write: Gendered Advice as a Response to Women’s Authorship.....	196

Part 3. Reading the Nation(s): Walter Scott.....	204
3.1 Nation: Scotland	207
3.1.1 Women's Balladry	207
3.1.2 Joanna Baillie's Heritage Tragedy: The Family Legend	219
3.2 Nation: Britain	230
3.2.1 Joanna Baillie and the British Stage.....	232
3.2.1.1 Baillie and écriture masculine	233
3.2.1.2 Shakespearean Tragedy: Orra	238
3.2.1.3 Staging Baillie: Scott's Enthusiasm and Diplomacy.....	244
3.2.2 Maria Edgeworth's National Tale.....	250
3.2.2.1 Character Sketches: Truth Disguised in Fiction.....	253
3.2.2.2 Distinctiveness of Edgeworth's Style	262
Conclusion.....	269
Bibliography.....	277
Index.....	301