

Contents

Preface vii

Acknowledgements viii

1	The Functions of Criticism	1
1	The End of Criticism?	1
2	Politics and Rhetoric	8
3	The Death of Experience	17
4	Imagination	22
2	What is Poetry?	25
1	Poetry and Prose	25
2	Poetry and Morality	28
3	Poetry and Fiction	31
4	Poetry and Pragmatism	38
5	Poetic Language	41
3	Formalists	48
1	Literariness	48
2	Estrangement	49
3	The Semiotics of Yury Lotman	52
4	The Incarnational Fallacy	59
4	In Pursuit of Form	65
1	The Meaning of Form	65
2	Form versus Content	70
3	Form as Transcending Content	79

4	Poetry and Performance	88
5	Two American Examples	96
5	How to Read a Poem	102
1	Is Criticism Just Subjective?	102
2	Meaning and Subjectivity	108
3	Tone, Mood and Pitch	114
4	Intensity and Pace	118
5	Texture	120
6	Syntax, Grammar and Punctuation	121
7	Ambiguity	124
8	Punctuation	130
9	Rhyme	131
10	Rhythm and Metre	135
11	Imagery	138
6	Four Nature Poems	143
1	William Collins, 'Ode to Evening'	143
2	William Wordsworth, 'The Solitary Reaper'	149
3	Gerard Manley Hopkins, 'God's Grandeur'	153
4	Edward Thomas, 'Fifty Faggots'	157
5	Form and History	161
	Glossary	165
	Index	169