

Contents

List of Tables vii

Acknowledgments ix

Introduction: Now that We're Civic xi

Introduction / Rhetorical Education: An Articulated Site of Hegemony / Key Sites of Articulation: Rhetorical Publicity and Rhetorical Pedagogy / Conclusion

1. One Republic, Many Republicanisms:

Early American Political Discourse and Publicity 1

Introduction / Republican Publicity and Political Discourse: The Rhetorical Perimeters of Republicanism / Republicanism and Laissez-Faire Capitalism: Political Discourse, Publicity, and Economics / Hegemony and Republican Rhetorical Strategy / Conclusion

2. One Republic, Many Paideiai: Political Discourse,

Publicity, and Education in Early America 36

Introduction / Politics and Paideia before Republicanism / The King's College Controversy: Republican Education Contested / A Federal English: Rhetorical Paideia for Federalist Interests / Politics, Pedagogy, and Economics / Benjamin Franklin's Bourgeois Republican Paideia / John Quincy Adams's Bourgeois Republican Paideia and the Era of Good Feelings / The Edges of Republican Rhetorical Paideiai / Conclusion

3. Yale 1701–1817 79

Introduction / Connecticut Political Economy, 1700–40 / The Old Order: Rhetoric at Yale before 1740 / Democratic Populism and Authoritarian Backlash: Thomas Clap's Legacy, 1740–66 / Connecticut Political Economy after

1760 / Rhetorical Education at Yale, 1766–77 / Yale during and after the Revolution: Rhetoric under Ezra Stiles / Timothy Dwight Returns to Yale: Belletrism, Puritanism, and Federalism / Conclusion

4. King's College/Columbia and the College of Philadelphia/

University of Pennsylvania, 1754–1800 135

Introduction / King's College, 1754–77 / The College of Philadelphia, 1755–79 / Columbia University, 1787–1800 / The University of Pennsylvania, 1795–1813 / Conclusion

5. The College of New Jersey, 1746–1822 177

Introduction / Presbyterianism and the New Jersey Bourgeoisie / John Witherspoon's Republican Rhetorical Education / Witherspoon's Bourgeois Liberal Republican Paideia / Witherspoon's Ascriptive, Liberal, Republican Paideia / Witherspoon's Republican Rhetorical Legacy / Conclusion

Conclusion: We Are All Republicans 206

Introduction / Liberalism and the Present Hegemony / The Republican Challenge to Liberal Hegemony

Notes 219

Works Cited 239

Index 263