

Contents

List of Illustrations	ix
List of Abbreviations	xi
Acknowledgements	xii
Introduction	1
1 Bodies and Urban Space: Parades, Marches and Demonstrations 1890s–1920s	13
‘When the Germans learned to demonstrate...’: Demonstrations in Imperial Germany	14
The republic and parades: Expressing republican spirit or militaristic principles?	18
‘A black-red-gold storm in German Cities’: Interpreting urban space	25
2 Sports and Games 1925–1928	34
Frankfurt in 1925: The Workers’ Olympics	35
Cologne’s Kampfspiele in 1926: Sport and the nation	42
‘Turnvater Jahn’ and republican festivities in August 1928	49
3 Staging the Republic: Constitution Day Festivities in 1929	58
‘Staging the Republic’: Ideas, concepts, problems	59
Flags, masses and parades: August 1929	66
A republican mass spectacle: Performing unity	71
4 Republican Nationalism: The Rhineland Celebration in 1930	80
The republic and nationalist themes	81
The Rhineland as part of festive representation	85
The Rhineland mass spectacle in 1930	90
5 Party Rallies and the Thingspiel in the Third Reich	102
Nazi Party Rallies: Staging the Volksgemeinschaft	103
The Nazi Thingspiel : A National Socialist theatre form	108

The Loreley and the Thingspiel : Rhine romantic and spectacles	113
6 The Death of the Spectacle in the mid-1930s	121
The festive play at the Olympic Games in 1936	122
The death of the spectacle in the mid-1930s	129
Territorial unity in 1938: The sporting festival in Breslau	133
7 'Like 100 years ago ...': Local Festivities in Weimar and Nazi Germany	139
Constitution Day celebrations at local level	140
The Reichsbanner and its festivities	145
Reforming popular taste: The Nazis and local celebrations	150
Conclusion	158
Notes	166
Bibliography	204
Index	222