Contents

Preface to the 2nd Edition viii

Publisher's Acknowledgments xv

About the Author xvi

1. Introduction to Action Research 1
- Why Conduct Action Research? 1
- The Complexity of Routine Instructional Decisions 2
- Key Terms and Concepts 5
- Universal Student Success 11

2. Finding a Focus 12
- Zeroing in on Your Priorities 12
- Using Reflective Writing to Find a Focus 13
- Performance, Process, and Program Targets and Action Research by School Leaders 20
- Using a Journal to Identify Action Research Foci 20
- Reflective Interviews 25
- Reflective Interviewing and the Problem of Isolation 25
- Analytic Discourse 26
- Team Reflection 27

3. Refining the Focus 30
- Visualizing Success 31
- Doing an Instructional Postmortem 32
- Taking Stock of One's Recent Leadership Experience 35
- Comparing Your Experience With the Experience of Others 35
- Developing Criteria to Measure Changes With Priority Achievement Targets 41
- Creating Performance Rating Scales 43
- Rating Scales and Program Action Research 47
- The Special Problem of Long-Range Goals 49
- Assessing Rate of Growth 50
- Determining Adequate Yearly Progress in Real Time 50
- Producing Your Own Rate-of-Growth Charts 53
- Ascertaining Rate of Growth in Leadership Projects 54

4. Articulating a Theory of Action 56
If Not Us, Who? 57
An Adequate Knowledge Base Already Exists 58
Going Beyond Proven Practices:
Building a Theory of Action 58
Two Kinds of Variables 61
Creating Mileposts on the Route to Mastery 62
Inferring Independent Variables 62
Using the Priority Pie to Identify, Clarify, and Weigh Independent Variables 63
Using the Priority Pie With Descriptive Research 68

5. Drawing a Theory of Action 70
Why a Map? 71
Building a Graphic Reconstruction 73
Graphic Reconstructions for Quasi-Experimental Research 74
Graphic Reconstructions With Descriptive Research 76
Proofing a Theory of Action-Leadership Projects 85

6. Determining the Research Questions 87
Three Generic Action Research Questions 88
Developing Your Own Research Questions 96
Two-Step Walk-Through 97
Drafting the Questions 101
Surfacing Research Questions for Leadership Projects 104

7. Building a Data-Collection Plan 105
Data Collection and the
Competing Demands for Your Time 106
What Qualifies as Teaching? 106
What Qualifies as Data? 107
Data in Descriptive Research 107
Data in Quasi-Experimental Research 108
Data Collection and Concerns About Precision 108
Fishing in a Sea of Data 110
Securing Research Assistants 110
Building a Triangulated Data-Collection Plan 112
Data-Collection Planning for Leadership Projects 115
Integrating Efficiencies Into Your Data-Collection Work 115
Using Technology to Compile and
Assemble Action Research Data 124
Keeping a Researcher's Journal 125

8. Analyzing the Data 126
Trend Analysis 127
Organizing Data to Help Answer the
Three Generic Questions 129
ACR Question 1: What Did We Do? 130
ACR Question 2: What Changes
Occurred Regarding the Achievement Targets? 138

ACR Question 3: What Was the Relationship Between Actions Taken and Any Changes in Performance on the Targets? 143
Drawing Tentative Assertions 148
Using Member Checking to Add Credibility to the Tentative Assertions 149
Additional Tools for Qualitative Data Analysis 151
Qualitative Data Analysis Using Bins and a Matrix 153
Low-Tech Strategies for Bins and Matrixes 155
Using a Computer for Bins and Matrixes 157

9. Turning Findings Into Action Plans 163
Modifying Your Theory of Action 163
Data-Based Decision Making 167
Turning Your Findings Into Ed Specs 171
Solicit and Brainstorm Action Alternatives 172
Using Ed Specs to Evaluate Action Alternatives 174
Using Ed Specs to Evaluate Action Alternatives for Schoolwide Projects 177
Completing the Cycle: Revised Theory of Action 2 177

10. Reporting and Sharing Action Research 179
Common Issues 180
Formats for Reporting 184
Creating a Bank of Abstracts 186
Creating a District Archive 189

11. Conclusion: The School as a Learning Organization 191
The Two Keys: Coherence and Congruence 192
Putting the Pieces Together 193

Resource A: How to Use the Feedback Forms and Summary Reports 196

Resource B: Five Characteristics of a Quality Action Research Project 198

Resource C: Applications for Leadership Projects 202

Glossary 214

References 217

Index 219