

Contents

Author's preface	vi
Translator's preface	vii
Introduction	I
1 The oral and the written during the Jāhiliyyah and early Islam	16
2 The Qur'ān and Qur'ān 'readers' (qurrā')	30
3 The beginnings of religious scholarship in Islam: Sīrah, Ḥadīth, Tafsīr	40
4 Literature and the caliphal court	54
5 The turn toward systematisation: the taṣnīf movement	68
6 The birth of linguistics and philology	85
7 Books and their readership in the ninth century	99
8 Listening to books, or reading them?	111
Concluding remarks: from the aural to the read	122
Glossary	127
Bibliography	130
Index	145