

CONTENTS

Acknowledgements	vii
Abbreviations	viii
Transliteration and Translation	ix
About the Contributors	x
Introduction: (Mis)Representing Bakhtin David Shepherd	xiii
Part I: Subject—Carnival	1
The Dominant of Bakhtin's Philosophy: Dialogue and Carnival Viacheslav V. Ivanov	3
Bakhtin and the Russian Attitude to Laughter Sergei S. Averintsev	13
Bakhtin's Carnival: Utopia as Critique Michael Gardiner	20
Charmed Snakes and Little Oedipuses: The Architectonics of Carnival and Drama in Bakhtin, Artaud, and Brecht Robert Cunliffe	48
The Aesthetic Function of the Carnavalesque in Medieval English Drama Kristina Simeonova	70
David Mamet's Drama: The Dialogicality of Grotesque Realism Ilkka Joki	80
Unachievable Monologism and the Production of the Monster Jonathan Hall	99
Part II: Subject—Psychoanalysis	113
The Bakhtin School and Raymond Williams: The Subject and the Signifier Antony Easthope	115

Psychotherapy as the Construction of Interpenetrating Consciousnesses Bruce Dorval and David Gomberg	125
The Ethics of Subject Creation in Bakhtin and Lacan William R. Handley	144
Part III: Subject—Feminism	163
The Pregnant Text. Bakhtin's Ur-Chronotope: The Womb Ruth Ginsburg	165
The Framing of the Shrew: Discourses on Hysteria and its Resisting Voices Maroussia Hajdukowski-Ahmed	177
Exotopy and Feminist Critique Peter Hitchcock	196
Bakhtin and Feminist Projects: Judith Butler's Gender Trouble Clive Thomson	210
What Is Left Out: Bakhtin, Feminism, and the Culture of Boundaries Mary S. Pollock	229
Horror, Authors, and Heroes: Gendered Subjects and Objects in Bakhtin and Kristeva Mary O'Connor	242
Part IV: Subject—Subjects	259
Notes on the Cannibalistic Discourse of Monologism Iris M. Zavala	261
'Beasts and Jagged Strokes of Color': The Poetics of Hybridisation on the US—Mexican Border Alfred Arteaga	277
Index	295