

Contents

Contents	vii
Figures	xiii
Preface	xv
Acknowledgements	xxi
1 Motivations	1
1.1 What This Book is, and is Not, About	1
1.2 Motivating Rhetorical Relations	6
1.2.1 Temporal Structure	6
1.2.2 Anaphora and VP Ellipsis	8
1.2.3 Bridging	18
1.2.4 Presuppositions	23
1.2.5 Lexical Ambiguity	26
1.2.6 Implicature in Dialogue	28
1.3 Rhetorical Relations in Corpora	32
1.4 Conclusions	35
2 Semantic Models of Discourse Interpretation	39
2.1 Introduction	39
2.2 Dynamic Semantics	39
2.3 DRs: Syntax and Semantics	45
2.3.1 A Basic Fragment	46
2.3.2 The Semantics of DRs	47
2.3.3 Questions	49
2.3.4 Requests	51
2.4 Construction and Underspecification	54
2.5 Why Dynamic Semantics is Not Enough	60
2.5.1 Anaphora	60

2.5.2	Temporal Anaphora	62
2.5.3	Presuppositions	63
2.6	Conclusion	67
3	Pragmatic Models of Discourse Interpretation	69
3.1	Introduction	69
3.2	Traditional Theories of Pragmatics	71
3.2.1	Relevance Theory	75
3.2.2	Against The Belief Change Model of Discourse Content	76
3.2.3	Two Logics: The Logic of Information Content and the Logic of Information Packaging	78
3.3	Cognitive Approaches to Discourse Interpretation	81
3.3.1	Plan Recognition and Discourse Structure	82
3.3.2	Interpretation as Abduction	90
3.4	Other Theories that Use Rhetorical Relations	102
3.5	Empirical Approaches to Discourse Interpretation	105
3.6	Some Concluding Remarks	108
4	The Logical Form of Discourse	111
4.1	Introduction	111
4.2	Underspecification and Pragmatic Supplementation	113
4.3	Underspecified Logical Forms for Clauses	116
4.3.1	Other Sources of Underspecification	123
4.3.2	The Syntax of ULFs	125
4.3.3	The Interpretation of ULFs	129
4.4	The Syntax of the Discourse Language	135
4.4.1	A General Approach to Syntax	137
4.5	A Language for Describing Logical Forms	141
4.6	The Vocabulary of Discourse Relations	145
4.7	Hierarchical Structure and Availability	146
4.8	The Logic of Information Content	155
4.8.1	Elaboration and Explanation	159
4.8.2	Narration: A Case for Scalar Coherence	162
4.8.3	Background	165
4.8.4	Parallel and Contrast	168
4.8.5	Macrostructure Meets Microstructure	169
4.9	Unpacking the Truth Conditions: An Example	171
4.10	Introducing Holes into Discourse Structures	173
4.11	Conclusion	177

5	Building Logical Forms for Discourse	179
5.1	Introduction	179
5.2	Filling in Holes	180
5.2.1	The Need for Nonmonotonic Inference	181
5.2.2	The Logic: Some Preliminary Remarks	183
5.3	The Glue Language	184
5.4	Some Formal Details	186
5.4.1	Syntax	186
5.4.2	Semantics	188
5.4.3	The Logic: Brief Overview	189
5.4.4	The Logic: Some Formal Details	192
5.5	Transferring Information into the Glue Language	194
5.6	Some Default Rules for Inferring Discourse Relations	199
5.6.1	Narration	199
5.6.2	Explanation, Elaboration and Result	204
5.6.3	Background	207
5.6.4	Parallel and Contrast	208
5.7	Inferring Discourse Relations: Some Examples	209
5.8	Putting the Pieces together: SDRS Update	212
5.9	Working Through a Bigger Example	223
5.10	Formulating Maximal Discourse Coherence	230
5.10.1	Some Applications of MDC	235
5.11	Interpreting Presuppositions	238
5.12	Conclusions	246
6	The Lexicon and Discourse Structure	249
6.1	Introduction	249
6.2	What is in the Lexicon?	250
6.3	Lexical Semantics in Review	253
6.3.1	Inheritance Structure	254
6.3.2	Argument and Event Structure	264
6.4	Lexical Information to Discourse Structure	273
6.4.1	Cases where Rhetorical Connections are Lexically Specified	273
6.4.2	Defeasible Inferences from Lexical Information	279
6.4.3	Exploiting Information about Subtypes in the Lexicon	282
6.4.4	Subcategorisation Frames and Discourse Structure	283
6.5	From Discourse Structure to Lexical Interpretation	288
6.6	Conclusion	291

7	Discourse Relations for Dialogue	293
7.1	Introduction	293
7.2	Why Dialogue and Monologue are Similar	293
7.2.1	Availability in Dialogue	293
7.2.2	Rhetorical Relations in Monologue and Dialogue	296
7.3	Some Differences Between Monologue and Dialogue	298
7.3.1	An SDRS for Each Agent?	298
7.3.2	Cognitive Constraints on Anaphora	301
7.4	SDRT and Speech Acts	304
7.4.1	Indirect Speech Acts	307
7.5	Technical Details of SDRT for Dialogue	311
7.6	Simple Relations for Dialogue	313
7.6.1	Indirect Question Answer Pairs	313
7.6.2	Question Elaboration and Other Relations Involving Plans	320
7.6.3	Question Coordination	329
7.6.4	Other Relations Involving Questions	331
7.6.5	Metatalk Relations	333
7.6.6	Other Relations Involving Requests	336
7.7	Conclusions	341
8	Disputes in Dialogue	343
8.1	Introduction	343
8.2	Some Motivating Examples	343
8.3	Correction: The Analysis of one Divergent Relation	345
8.3.1	Some Formal Details	350
8.4	Settledness	361
8.5	An Analysis of an Extended Example	368
8.6	Conclusion	373
9	Cognitive Modelling	375
9.1	Introduction	375
9.2	Cognitive Modelling for Discourse Interpretation	376
9.2.1	The Rich Logic of Attitudes	378
9.2.2	The Shallow Language	379
9.2.3	The Syntax and Semantics of the Language	385
9.2.4	Axioms of Rationality and Cooperativity	390
9.2.5	Deriving Cognitive Modelling Axioms	401
9.3	From Cognitive Models to Discourse Structure	403
9.3.1	Responses to Questions	403
9.3.2	Some Examples	405
9.3.3	The Rhetorical Role of Questions	406
9.3.4	Some More Examples	409

9.3.5	Indicatives that Elaborate Plans	410
9.3.6	Inferring the Unexpected	412
9.3.7	Imperatives in Dialogue	413
9.4	Axioms for Discourse Relations Based on Structure	415
9.5	Applications	416
9.5.1	Cognitive Coordination	416
9.5.2	Calculating Implicatures	418
9.6	More Implicatures: Turn taking	427
9.7	Conclusions	427
10	Some Concluding Remarks	429
10.1	What We've Done	429
10.2	The Dynamic Logic of Information Content	432
10.3	Semantic Underspecification	435
10.4	Discourse Update	436
10.5	The Logic of the Lexicon	438
10.6	The Logic of Cognitive Modelling	440
10.7	Comparison with Other Theories	441
10.8	Where We Go From Here	442
A	Objections and Replies	445
A.1	Introduction	445
A.2	Questions of Detail	445
A.2.1	Is the Glue Logic too Complex?	445
A.2.2	Representationalism	446
A.2.3	Empirical Difficulties: Generalisability and Falsifiability	447
A.3	Questions of Principle	447
A.3.1	Can Discourse Structure be Eliminated?	448
A.3.2	Cognitive Foundations of Rhetorical relations	450
B	Notation Index	453
B.1	Information Content: Object Language	453
B.2	Information Content: Metalanguage	454
B.3	Underspecified Information Content: The Language \mathcal{L}_{ulf}	454
B.4	Underspecified Information Content: Metalanguage	454
B.5	Glue Logic: Object Language	455
B.6	Glue Logic: Metalanguage	455
B.7	Discourse Update	456
B.8	Cognitive Modelling Language	456
C	The Semantics of DRT	457

D	Glossary of Discourse Relations	459
D.1	Introduction	459
D.2	Content-Level Relations	459
D.2.1	Content-Level Relations for Indicatives	460
D.2.2	Content-Level Relations Involving Interrogatives	463
D.2.3	Content-Level Relations Involving Imperatives	464
D.3	Text Structuring Relations	465
D.4	Cognitive-Level Discourse Relations	466
D.5	Divergent Relations	469
D.6	Metatalk Relations	470
E	Summary of Discourse Update	473
E.1	Summary of the Glue-Logic Axioms	473
E.2	Discourse Update Definitions	475
F	Some Proofs in the Glue Logic	479
F.1	The Specificity Principle	479
F.2	An Example Involving Specificity	479
	References	481
	Index	506
	Citation Index	521