{ CONTENTS }

Acknowledgments ix

Foreword: Insensitivity and Blindness xi

Introduction: Resistance, Democratic Sensibilities, and the Cultivation of Perplexity 3

A. The Importance of Dissent and the Imperative of Epistemic Interaction 3
B. Resistance, Perplexity, and Multiperspectivalism 13
C. Overview 23

1. Active Ignorance, Epistemic Others, and Epistemic Friction 27

1.1. Active Ignorance and the Epistemic Vices of the Privileged 30
1.2. Lucidity and the Epistemic Virtues of the Oppressed 40
1.3. Resistance, Epistemic Responsibility, and the Regulative Principles of "Epistemic Friction" 48

2. Resistance as Epistemic Vice and as Epistemic Virtue 56

2.1. The Excess of Epistemic Authority and the Resulting Insensitivity 57
2.1.1. Epistemic Justice as Interactive, Comparative, and Contrastive 60
2.1.2. Differential Authority, Systematic Injustice, and the Social Imaginary 64
2.2. The Vice of Avoiding Epistemic Friction, Hermeneutical Injustice, and the Problem of "Meta-Blindness" 70
2.3. Striving for Open-Mindedness: Epistemic Friction and Epistemic Counterpoints as Correctives of Meta-Blindness 75

3. Imposed Silences and Shared Hermeneutical Responsibilities 90

3.1. Silences and the Communicative Approach to Epistemic Injustice 91
3.2. Communicative Pluralism and Hermeneutical Injustice 96
3.3. Our Hermeneutical Responsibilities with Respect to Multiple Publics 109

4. Epistemic Responsibility and Culpable Ignorance 119

4.1. Responsible Agency, Knowledge/Ignorance, and Social Injustice 121
4.2. Betraying One's Responsibilities under Conditions of Oppression: Social Contextuality, Interconnectedness, and Culpable Ignorance 133
4.2.1. Pig Heads, Burning Crosses, and Car Keys 135
4.2.2. The Social Division of Cognitive Laziness 145
4.2.3. Blindness to Differences 150
4.2.4. Blindness to Social Relationality and the Relevance Dilemma 154
4.3. Overlapping Insensitivities, Culture-Blaming, and Gender Violence against Third World Women 161

5. Meta-Lucidity, "Epistemic Heroes," and the Everyday Struggle Toward Epistemic Justice 186

5.1. Living Up to One's Epistemic Responsibilities under Conditions of Oppression: "Meta-Lucidity" 187

5.2. Promoting Lucidity and Social Change 206

5.3. Echoing: Chained Action, "Epistemic Heroes," and Social Networks 225

5.3.1. Sor Juana Inés de la Cruz: Epistemic Courage, Resistant Imagination, and Epistemic Friction 230

5.3.2. Rosa Parks: Counter-Performativity, Chained Agency, and Social Networks 234

6. Resistant Imaginations and Radical Solidarity 250

6.1. Pluralistic Communities of Resistance 258

6.2. Normative Pluralism and Radical Solidarity 266

6.3. Epistemic Friction and Insurrectionary Genealogies 281

6.4. Guerrilla Pluralism, Counter-Memories, and Epistemologies of Ignorance 289

6.5. Resistant Imaginations: Toward a Kaleidoscopic Social Sensibility 297

6.6. Conclusion: Network Solidarity 308

Coda 313

References 317

Index 327