

CONTENTS

Acknowledgments	vii
Abbreviations	xi
1 Traditions and Theories	1
Salons as Non-Places	1
Traditions I: The French Salons	3
Traditions II: The Bluestockings	7
Private, Public, and Sociable Spheres	11
The Theatricality of the Salon	15
Sources and Source Problems	17
Stages of Exploration	19
2 Mary Berry and Her British Spaces	23
Mary Berry: The Life of a Conservative Feminist	24
The Misses Otranto, Strawberry Hill, and Horace Walpole's Family Romances	29
Anne Damer	35
From the Closet to Drury Lane: Fashionable Friends (1801) on Stage	40
3 Mary Berry as a Learned Woman: Out of the Closet	51
From a Parmesan Otranto to Malthus: Mary Berry's Reading	51
In and Out of the Drawing-Rooms in North Audley Street and Curzon Street	55
The Freedom of the Road in France and Italy	59
Mary Berry as Editor and Historian	65
4 Holland House and Lady Holland	71
Holland House and Whig Culture	72
Lady and Lord Holland	76
Reflections on Traveling: Italy and Spain	82
Politics: Enthusiasm for Napoleon	88
Spontaneous Versification	92

5	The Holland House Set	97
	The Circle and Its Oracle: The Edinburgh Review	98
	Three Habitué s: Samuel Rogers, Sydney Smith, and Thomas Moore	104
	Byron and Holland House	109
	Amorous Entanglements and Caroline Lamb's Glenarvon	113
6	The Countess of Blessington as Hostess	119
	From Irish Country Girl to London's Outcast Queen: Lady Blessington's Life	120
	The Conversations of Lord Byron	126
	"Her Genius Lay in Her Tongue": The Salons at Seamore Place and Gore House	133
	Nathaniel Parker Willis: An American Connection	137
7	The Countess of Blessington as Writer and Editor	145
	Sociable Idlers in Italy	146
	Irishness: Female Idylls and an Irishwoman on the Loose	152
	London Society in Blessington's Silver-Fork Novels	158
	The Book of Beauty and Other Keepsakes	165
8	Epilogue	173
	Notes	177
	Works Cited	217
	Index	243