

Table of Contents

Acknowledgements	9
Prologue	11
Chapter 1
Introduction	16
1.1 Identity and migration of the Hui: background	16
1.2 Current state of research	20
1.3 Aim and focus of the study	21
1.4 Fieldwork	22
1.5 Outline of the book	28
Chapter 2
Who are the Hui: a historical review	31
2.1 From newcomers to locals	31
2.1.1 Tang dynasty (618–907): arrival and first migration waves.....	31
2.1.2 Song dynasty (960–1279): gaining economic and social strength.....	33
2.1.3 Yuan dynasty (1279–1368): improvement of status.....	35
2.1.4 Ming dynasty (1368–1644): formation of the Hui population.....	37
2.1.5 Qing dynasty (1644–1911): struggles for existence.....	40
2.1.6 Republic of China (1912–1949): integration and indigenisation.....	44
2.1.7 People’s Republic of China (1949–): Hui as a shaoshu minzu	47
2.2 The Jahriyya : “the order of bloody necks”	49
2.2.1 Sufism’s entry into China and the formation of menhuan	50
2.2.2 Jahriyya Muslims: hagiography and present situation	54
2.2.3 Religious structure and organisation	60
Chapter 3
Ecological and labour migration in rural Ningxia	67
3.1 China’s internal migration: an overview	68
3.2 Ecological migration in Ningxia	71
3.3 Labour migration: an example from Qingtongxia	79
3.4 Hui vis-à-vis Han at their new homes	85
Chapter 4
Qingzhen and its changing values	96
4.1 Religious purity and pollution in general	96
4.2 Qingzhen on the local level	99
4.2.1 Pork issue	100
4.2.2 Gender differences	106
4.2.3 Qingzhen and its dilemmas	108

Chapter 5
Fasting and Ramadan in an immigration area	112
5.1 Introduction	112
5.2 Ramadan fasting	115
5.2.1 Authorised Islamic traditions	115
5.2.2 Local practices of the Jahriyya peasants in Ningxia	120
5.3 Voluntary fasting	135
5.4 Brief summary	136
Chapter 6
Perspectives on death and the afterlife	138
6.1 Ermaili and its socioreligious meanings to migrants	138
6.1.1 Introduction	138
6.1.2 The performance of ermaili	141
6.1.3 Social functions of commemoration rituals	149
6.1.4 Migration and its impact on ermaili rituals	151
6.2 Gongbei : the centres of spiritual power	155
6.3 The tending of family tombs	161
Chapter 7
Social and religious position of migrant women	168
Chapter 8
Conclusions	189
Glossary	197
Bibliography	206