

Contents

Acknowledgments	ix
Introduction	1
Prologue: Ghostwriting the Holocaust: The Ghost Writer, The Diary, The Kindly Ones, and Me	19
SECTION I. Psychoanalytic Listening and Fictions of the Holocaust
1 Voyeurism, Complicated Mourning, and the Fetish: Cynthia Ozick's The Shawl	41
2 Forced Confessions: Subject Position, Framing, and the "Art" of Spiegelman's Maus	70
3 Aryeh Lev Stollman's The Far Euphrates : Re-Picturing the Pre-Memory Moment	100
SECTION II. Golems, Ghosts, Idols, and Messiahs: Complicated Mourning and the Intertextual Construction of a Jewish Symptom
4 Bruno Schulz, the Messiah, and Ghost/writing the Past	127
5 A Jewish History of Blocked Mourning and Love	146
6 See Under: Mourning	163
SECTION III. Mourning Becomes the Nations: Styron, Schlink, Sebald
7 Blacks, Jews, and Southerners in William Styron's Sophie's Choice	185
8 (Re)Reading the Holocaust from a German Point of View: Bernhard Schlink's The Reader	195

9	Mourning and Melancholia in W. G. Sebald's Austerlitz	209
	Epilogue: Holocaust, Apartheid, and the Slaughter of Animals: J. M. Coetzee's Elizabeth Costello and Cora Diamond's "Difficulty of Reality"	228
	Bibliography	239
	Index	247