

Contents

Acknowledgments	vii
Introduction: Emergent Trends in Post-9/11 Literature and Criticism Paul Petrovic	ix
I: Counterreactions against Realism	1
1 Jess Walter's The Zero : Satirizing the "Desert of the Real" Marjorie Worthington	3
2 Memorializing Post-9/11 New York in Jonathan Lethem's Chronic City Jeffrey Severs	17
3 "Never Give a Good Politician Time to Pray": Stephen King's Treatment of Political Power and Community Involvement in Under the Dome Tamara Watkins	29
4 Which Came First, Zombies or the Plague?: Colson Whitehead's Zone One as Post-9/11 Allegory Anne Canavan	41
5 A Eulogy of the Urban Superhero: The Everyday Destruction of Space in the Superhero Film James N. Gilmore	53
II: Perception, Ideology, and Community	65
6 Paucity of Imagination: Stereotypes, Public Debates, and the Limits of Ideology in Amy Waldman's The Submission Amir Khadem	67
7 Strangers in a Homeland: Veterans and "Innocensus" in Billy Lynn's Long Halftime Walk and The Yellow Birds Damon Barta	79
8 "Our New Customer Is the Bush Administration?": Questioning Cultural Identity and Governmental Surveillance in Allegra Goodman's The Cookbook Collector Paul Petrovic	93

9	“I’m the Motherfucker Who Found This Place”: Locating Post-bin Laden America in Zero Dark Thirty Lloyd Isaac Vayo	105
10	From 24 to Homeland : The Shift in America’s Perception of Terrorism Deborah Pless	119
III: Masculinity, Marginalization, Melancholy, and Hyper-Protection		129
11	The Danger That Keeps Knocking: Representations of Post-9/11 Masculinity in Vince Gilligan’s Breaking Bad Shana Kraynak	131
12	Post-Closet and Post-9/11: The Bromantic Imagination of Disaster in This Is the End and I’m So Excited! Ken Feil	143
13	The Human Barnyard: Rhetoric, Identification, and Symbolic Representation in Giannina Braschi’s United States of Banana Elizabeth Lowry	155
14	The Pain and Prison of Post-9/11 Parenting in Jonathan Franzen’s Freedom Megan Cannella	165
15	How to Get to 9/11: Teju Cole’s Melancholic Fiction Ariela Freedman	177
16	Poetic Responses to 9/11 and Adrienne Rich’s The School among the Ruins Lin Knutson	187
IV: International Responses		199
17	“Some Sense of Bridge Making”: Exploring the Relationship between America and Pakistan in Mohsin Hamid’s The Reluctant Fundamentalist and Mira Nair’s Film Adaptation Laura Findlay	201
18	Haunting Cartographies: Mapping the Aftermath in Joachim Trier’s Oslo, August 31st Danica van de Velde	213
Index		225
About the Contributors		229