

Contents

Acknowledgements	A vii
Introduction: Embodied Memories	1
Queer postcolonial narratives, or a note on methodology	6
Performative listening	13
Historicizing witnessing	23
An ethics of witnessing, or multisensory epistemologies	27
Queer postcolonial structure	38
1 Intergenerational Witnessing in Shani Mootoo's Cereus Blooms at Night	41
Unknowing pain	41
Historicizing responsibility	52
Unsettling reality	62
Embodied survival	66
Intergenerational witnessing	70
2 Monstrous Witnessing in Tahar Ben Jelloun's L'Enfant de sable	77
Embodied stories	77
Linguistic touching	84
Monstrous encounters	91
Tactile correspondence	96
An ethics of touch	100
Embodied allegories	103
Performative pain	113
Coda: Eyes at the Tips of the Fingers: Materializing the Self in Tahar Ben Jelloun's La Nuit sacrée	119
3 Fossil Witnessing in Ann-Marie MacDonald's Fall on Your Knees	135
Unknowing the family	135
Witnessing photographs	143
Painting memories	148
Memories as storytelling	157
Intergenerational fossils	169

Conclusion: Embodying Other Stories	181
Silent bodies, or speaking with the body	181
Decolonizing normativity	185
Visceral storytelling, or multisensory epistemologies	187
Performative endings	190
Embodied encounters	192
Bibliography	195
Index	221