

Table of contents

Acknowledgments — vii

List of Tables — viii

List of Figures — ix

Abbreviations — x

Introduction — 1

1 The word class ‘adjective’ — 10

1.1 Cross-linguistic and language-specific — 11

1.1.1 Cross-linguistic perspectives — 11

1.1.2 Language-specific perspectives — 19

1.2 Semantics and subclassification of adjectives — 23

1.2.1 Two dichotomies — 23

1.2.2 Adjective typologies and modification — 36

1.3 Chapter summary — 66

2 Individual-level, stage-level, and temporariness — 68

2.1 Data and Theories for the IL-SL-contrast — 70

2.1.1 Diagnostics — 71

2.1.2 Some notes on major theoretical accounts — 85

2.2 Lexical aspect and temporariness — 89

2.2.1 Adjectival aspect and the Vendler-classification — 89

2.2.2 Temporariness and IL-SL — 98

2.3 What kind of adjectives are typical SLs? — 103

2.3.1 Typical SLs are absolute gradable adjectives — 104

2.3.2 Conjectures on the (partial) absolute-SL-coincidence — 105

2.4 Chapter summary — 109

3 Adjective order restrictions, adjective classes, and property concepts in DP — 111

3.1 Quality adjectives and DP structure — 114

3.2 Adjective order restrictions — 120

3.2.1 Preliminaries and scope of investigation — 122

3.2.2 AORs in the narrow sense — 131

3.3 Corpus-study — 155

3.3.1 Rationale — 155

3.3.2 Search procedure — 161

3.3.3 Yield and data cleansing — 162

3.3.4 Results — 163

|          |   |            |
|----------|---|------------|
| 3.3.5    | Discussion —                                    | 170        |
| 3.4      | Questionnaire study I —                         | 172        |
| 3.4.1    | Rationale —                                     | 172        |
| 3.4.2    | Participants and set-up —                       | 173        |
| 3.4.3    | Items and hypotheses —                          | 174        |
| 3.4.4    | Results —                                       | 180        |
| 3.4.5    | Discussion —                                    | 183        |
| 3.5      | Chapter summary and assessment —                | 186        |
| 4 | Layered adjective order and genericity — | 189 |
| 4.1      | Modifiers applying to kinds —                   | 189        |
| 4.1.1    | Genericity —                                    | 189        |
| 4.1.2    | Well-establishedness —                          | 191        |
| 4.1.3    | Concepts and kinds —                            | 195        |
| 4.1.4    | The structural position of kind modifiers —     | 197        |
| 4.2      | The two-layered approach in Cinque and Larson — | 200        |
| 4.2.1    | Data —  | 200        |
| 4.2.2    | The theory according to Larson and Cinque —     | 203        |
| 4.2.3    | Challenges to the two-layer system —            | 206        |
| 4.3      | Questionnaire study II —                        | 215        |
| 4.3.1    | Rationale —                                     | 215        |
| 4.3.2    | Participants and set-up —                       | 216        |
| 4.3.3    | Items and hypotheses —                          | 217        |
| 4.3.4    | Results —                                       | 221        |
| 4.3.5    | Discussion —                                    | 225        |
| 4.4      | Chapter summary —                               | 229        |
|          | Conclusion —                             | 230 |
|          | References —                             | 234 |
|          | Appendix I —                             | 247 |
|          | Appendix II —                            | 249 |
|          | Appendix III —                           | 259 |
|          | Subject index —                          | 261 |