

Journal of MACROECONOMICS

Special Issue: What Monetary Policy Can and Cannot Do

Edited by Daniel L. Thornton

CONTENTS

D.L. Thornton, Guest editor's introduction: What monetary policy can and cannot do	1
G.D. Rudebusch and J.C. Williams, A wedge in the dual mandate: Monetary policy and long-term unemployment	5
J.R. Lothian, Comment on Rudebusch and Williams, "A wedge in the dual mandate: Monetary policy and long-term unemployment"	19
M. Boldrin, Comment on "A wedge in the dual mandate: Monetary policy and long-term unemployment"	26
R. Beaupain and A. Durré, Excess liquidity and the money market in the euro area	33
H.D. Gibson, S.G. Hall and G.S. Tavlas, The effectiveness of the ECB's asset purchase programs of 2009 to 2012	45
A. Meinusch and P. Tillmann, The macroeconomic impact of unconventional monetary policy shocks	58
E. Claus and M. Dungey, Can monetary policy surprises affect the term structure?	68
A. Kumar and P. M. Orrenius, A closer look at the Phillips curve using state-level data	84
M. Rubio, Short and long-term interest rates and the effectiveness of monetary and macroprudential policies	103
R. Alstadheim, The zero lower bound on the interest rate and a Neoclassical Phillips curve	116