

Contents

Preface: Character Remains — XI

Introduction — 1

Inconsistent usage — 1

Problematic methodologies — 4

The erasure of the subject — 9

Aesthetics, politics, subjectivity — 11

Performance philosophy: a glossary — 14

1 The Life, Death and Second Coming of Character — 23

The precarious life of character in theatre studies — 24

Death and disappearance: the 1990s — 27

Spectral second comings — 33

Latest renegotiations — 41

Conclusion — 44

2 Figuring the Subject beyond Individuality — 48

Louis Althusser: scenes of address — 50

Judith Butler: the body, the psyche and the social amidst normative regulations — 54

    Passionate attachments: subjectivity and subjection beyond Foucault — 55

    Rethinking interpellation and recognition — 56

    Performativity, the body and the psyche — 59

    Butler's theory of subjectivation and the debate on character — 61

Alain Badiou: practice-based fidelity to the Truth of the Event — 63

    The terms of Badiou's mathemes — 64

    Fidelity as a subjective destination: the faithful Subject — 67

    Further subjective destinations and their Subjects: reaction and negation — 70

    Thinking the theatre event through the Badiouian Event — 71

Jacques Rancière: heterology, disidentification and equality — 74

    A community of interruptions without a common identity — 78

    The subject and/as politics: the redistribution of the sensible — 79

    "The staging of a common place": Rancière and the theatre — 81

Conclusion — 83

3 Singular Subjectivities — 86

A performativity of refusal: Sarah Kane's Crave and 4.48 Psychosis — 88

Framing the debate: individual "mindscape", problematic cartographies — 88

Crave and 4.48 Psychosis on the page — 92

Crave and 4.48 Psychosis on the stage — 105

Hybridity and relationality: Ed Thomas's Stone City Blue — 114

Resituating Thomas's work — 114

Textual characterisation in Stone City Blue — 119

Staging Stone City Blue — 135

Conclusion — 142

4 Collective Subjectivities — 145

Political gestures in a post-political scenario: Tim Crouch's ENGLAND — 148

Igniting a politics-inflected debate on Crouch's work — 148

Performance analysis — 156

"Dabbing": art, conviviality and privilege in ENGLAND — 159

"Wringing": disidentification and subalternity in ENGLAND — 182

Conclusion — 195

Conclusion — 197

Appendix: Brief Survey of Character-less Plays, 1900 – Present — 200

The historical avant-garde — 200

Post-war European experimentation — 201

British work: 1990s – present — 203

Contemporary European experiments — 204

Works Cited — 208

Index — 225