

Contents

Acknowledgements	vii
Notes on Contributors	viii
1 Introduction: The Aesthetics and Politics of British TV Comedy Jürgen Kamm and Birgit Neumann	1
Part I The 1950s and 1960s: Beginnings of the British Sitcom and the Satire Boom
2 A Golden Age of British Sitcom? Hancock's Half Hour and Steptoe and Son Richard Kilborn	23
3 'Your Little Game': Myth and War in Dad's Army Bernd Lenz	36
4 'The Struggle of Class against Class is a What Struggle?' Monty Python's Flying Circus and its Politics Alexander Brock	51
5 The Rag Trade : 'Everybody Out!' Gender, Politics and Class on the Factory Floor Mary Irwin	66
Part II The 1970s and 1980s: New Loyalties, Histories and Collective Identities – Post-familiar Paradigms
6 'Sambo' and 'Snowflake': Race and Race Relations in Love Thy Neighbour Nora Plesske	83
7 'You Snobs! You Stupid... Stuck-Up... Toffee-Nosed... Half-Witted... Upper-Class Piles of... Pus!' Basil Fawlty's Touch of Class and Other Hotel Matters in Fawlty Towers Paul Davies	99
8 Ignorant Master, Capable Servants: The Politics of Yes Minister and Yes Prime Minister Jürgen Kamm	114
9 Zany 'Alternative Comedy': The Young Ones vs. Margaret Thatcher Eckart Voigts	136
10 The Uses of History in Blackadder Gerold Sedlmayr	153

11	Black British Comedy: Desmond's and the Changing Face of Television Deirdre Osborne with Stephen Bourne	167
Part III The 1990s: (Un)doing Gender and Race
12	Laughing at Racism or Laughing with the Racists? The 'Indian Comedy' of Goodness Gracious Me Jochen Petzold	185
13	Exploding Family Values, Llamponing Feminism, Exposing Consumerism: Absolutely Fabulous Rainer Emig	197
14	Comic Strategies of Inclusion and 'Normalisation' in The Vicar of Dibley Lucia Krämer	212
15	Subverting the Sitcom from Within: Form, Ideology and Father Ted John Hill	225
16	'The Lady of the House Speaking': The Conservative Portrayal of English Class Stereotypes in Keeping Up Appearances Marion Gymnich	240
17	Family Life in Front of the Telly: The Royle Family Angela Krewani	254
18	Old Jokes: One Foot in the Grave , Comedy and the Elderly Brett Mills	265
Part IV The 2000s: Britcom Boom – New Britain = 'Cool Britannia'?
19	Spin, Swearing and Slapstick: The Thick of It Anette Pankratz	281
20	Life is Stationary: Mockumentary and Embarrassment in The Office Philip Jacobi	295
21	From Ever-Lusting Individuals to Ever-Lasting Couples: Coupling and Emotional Capitalism Joanna Rostek and Dorothea Will	311
22	The Comic Nation: Little Britain and the Politics of Representation Oliver Lindner	326
23	Laughing in Horror: Hybrid Genre and the Grotesque Body in Psychoville Stephan Karschay	341
	Index	359