

Contents

Wilhelm Röpke as a Pragmatic Political Economist and Eclectic Social Philosopher: An Introduction . . . . .	1
Patricia Commun and Stefan Kolev
Part I Wilhelm Röpke: New Biographical Insights
Between Two Continents: Wilhelm Röpke’s Years in Istanbul . . . . .	11
Antonio Masala and Özge Kama
Wilhelm Röpke’s Utopia and Swiss Reality: From Neoliberalism to Neoconservatism . . . . .	31
Andrea Franc
The Making of the “Third Way”: Wilhelm Röpke, Luigi Einaudi, and the Identity of Neoliberalism . . . . .	41
Alberto Giordano
Paleo- and Neoliberals: Ludwig von Mises and the “Ordo-interventionists” . . . . .	65
Stefan Kolev
Part II Wilhelm Röpke as a Political Economist: Between Keynes and the Austrians
The Moral Foundations of Society and Technological Progress of the Economy in the Work of Wilhelm Röpke . . . . .	93
Marcelo Resico and Stefano Solari
Was Wilhelm Röpke Really a Proto-Keynesian? . . . . .	109
Raphaël Fèvre

Wilhelm Röpke's Report on the Brauns Commission: Advocating a Pragmatic Business Cycle Policy . . . . .	121
Patricia Commun
The Secondary Depression: An Integral Part of Wilhelm Röpke's Business Cycle Theory . . . . .	133
Lachezar Grudev
Part IIIA Wilhelm Röpke as a Social Philosopher.
Part A: Conservatism
From Basel to Brooklyn: Liberal Cultural Pessimism in Burckhardt, Röpke, and the American Neoconservatives . . . . .	157
Alan S. Kahan
Wilhelm Röpke: Why He Was a Conservative . . . . .	165
Jean Solchany
Wilhelm Röpke and American Conservatism . . . . .	175
Tim Petersen
Cultural Pessimism and Liberal Regeneration? Wilhelm Röpke as an Ideological In-Between in German Social Philosophy . . . . .	187
Frans Willem Lantink
Part IIIB Wilhelm Röpke as a Social Philosopher.
Part B: Liberalism
Wilhelm Röpke on Liberalism, Culture, and Economic Development . . . . .	203
Nils Goldschmidt and Julian Dörr
Skepticism About Markets and Optimism About Culture . . . . .	219
Henrique Schneider
Democracy, Liberalism, and Moral Order in Wilhelm Röpke: A Comparison with James M. Buchanan . . . . .	237
Gabriele Ciampini
Wilhelm Röpke's Relevance in a Post-Totalitarian World . . . . .	259
Richard Ebeling	