

CONTENTS

Acknowledgements. . . . . vii

Introduction. Fluid Frontiers:

New Currents in Marine Environmental History

John R. Gillis and Franziska Torma . . . . . 1

I. REIMAGINING OCEANS

1. The Swamp: Waterland of the Semi-Wild

Adam Keul . . . . . 13

2. Filling Boston Commons: Law, Culture, and Ecology
in a Seventeenth-Century Estuary

Christopher L. Pastore. . . . . 27

3. Escaping the Maritime Revival Viewpoint

Glenn M. Grasso . . . . . 39

4. Beneath the Surface of the Pacific Waters:
John Steinbeck's (Deep) Ecological Explorations

Petr Kopecký . . . . . 52

II. HISTORICISING SEAS AND MARINE LIFE

5. To the Islands: Ecological Imperialism on the North-West Australian Coast

Joseph Christensen . . . . . 63

6. Old Waves, New Waves:
Changing Objects in Physical Oceanography

Stefan Helmreich . . . . . 76

7. Fishing Communities in Eighteenth-Century Iceland – An Interdisciplinary Case Study from Vestfirðir Stuart Morrison . . . . .	89
8. Modernity and Marine Environmental History: Cultural Influences on the Mechanisation of Georges Bank Fisheries, 1905–1912 Matthew McKenzie . . . . .	105
9. Producing Fishing Territory and Mapping Ghosts Robert Snyder . . . . .	117
III. SCIENCE AND LOCAL KNOWLEDGE
10. From Cook to Cousteau: The Many Lives of Coral Reefs Alistair Sponcel . . . . .	137
11. The Arctic Ocean as an Outdoor-Laboratory: How the First International Polar Year Expanded the Visual Perception of the Arctic Alexander Kraus . . . . .	162
12. The Sea seen as a Tri-Dimensional Social Space: The Case of the Gulf of St Lawrence Christian Fleury . . . . .	178
13. From Oceans through Islands to Mountains: Creating the ‘Correspondence Principle’ Michael S. Reidy . . . . .	192
Author biographies. . . . .	211
Index . . . . .	215