

Table of contents

Acknowledgments	ix
CHAPTER 1
Introduction	1
Bettelou Los and Pieter de Haan
Part I. Grammar change and information structure
CHAPTER 2
From OV to VO in English: How to Kroch the nut	9
Roland Hinterhölzl
CHAPTER 3
Word order and verb movement in Norwegian wh-questions: A comparison of production and judgment data	35
Marit Westergaard
CHAPTER 4
Conditional inversion and types of parametric change	57
Theresa Biberauer and Ian Roberts
CHAPTER 5
Optional V2 in modern Afrikaans: Probing a Germanic peculiarity	79
Theresa Biberauer
Part II. The first position in a Verb-Second language: Subjects and topics
CHAPTER 6
The information status of late subjects in passive main clauses in Old English	103
Gea Dreschler

CHAPTER 7

Position-related subject properties change in English

127

Erwin R. Komen

CHAPTER 8

Split coordination in Early English

155

Ann Taylor and Susan Pintzuk

Part III. Verb-Second effects

CHAPTER 9

Beowulf and Old English metre: Relics of a pre-V2 state?

187

Monique Tangelander and Bettelou Los

CHAPTER 10

The rise and fall of the passive auxiliary weorðan in the history of English

213

Gertjan Postma

CHAPTER 11

What comes second: Cross-linguistic analyses of information structure

in Dutch between English and German 241

Marianne Starren

Part IV. Particles in diachrony

CHAPTER 12

Verb particle combinations and word order change

in Dutch-lexifier creole languages

265

Robbert van Sluijs, Pieter Muysken and Bettelou Los

CHAPTER 13

Parts and particles: The story of DĒ

291

Nigel Vincent

CHAPTER 14

Exploring the role of information structure in the word order variation of Old English verb-particle combinations

311

Marion Elenbaas

Part V. Contrasting V2 and Non-V2 information structure

CHAPTER 15

The EFL teacher's nightmare: Information structure transfer from L2 English to L1 Dutch

337

Pieter de Haan

CHAPTER 16

Common framework, local context, local anchors: How information-structural transfer can help to distinguish within CEFR C2

353

Sanne van Vuuren and Rina de Vries

Index

371