

Contents

List of Illustrations and Maps	xv
List of Table and Boxes	xvii
Chronologies	xix
Dynasties and Periods	xxi
Names	xxiii
Geography	xxv
Abbreviations and References	xxix
Introduction	1
I. ORIENTATIONS
1. Sinitic in a Global Perspective	25
2. Scripts and Writing	42
3. The Oral Dimension	72
4. Material Texts: Manuscripts, Xylography, and Typography	103
5. Book Roads and Routes	130
II. READING AND TRANSLATING
6. Reading Sinitic Texts in the Vernaculars	157
7. Written Vernacular Translation	187
III. CHINESE TEXTS AND THE VERNACULARS
8. The Chinese Buddhist Canon and Other Buddhist Texts	217
9. Classics, Examinations, and Confucianism	246
10. Primers, Medical Texts, and Other Works	272
Conclusion: Sinitic and the Evolution of Vernacular Societies in East Asia	297
Bibliography	313
Index	377